

Leo and Loeb Remain Calm As State's Attorney Demands Death Penalty

STATE PRINCES YOUTHS' DEFENCE

Death Penalty Is Demanded For Murder and Kidnapping.

DARROW PREPARES

Associated Press Despatch. Chicago, Aug. 20.—Two of the high crimes for which Illinois provides the death penalty—murder, rape and kidnapping—were committed by Nathan Leopold, Jun., and Richard Loeb, in a manner justifying nothing less than death on the gallows, Thomas Marshall, assistant state's attorney, told Judge John R. Caverly today. He urged the extreme penalty in an argument based upon the phraseology of the Illinois laws and the formal charges connected with the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks to which the defendants have pleaded guilty.

Judge Caverly opened a book of law and followed the text as Mr. Marshall read the phrases defining murder and kidnapping as capital crimes in this state. The phrase "shall suffer the penalty of death" was always brought out in a voice raised in tone and emphasis in its deliberateness. The defendants gave no sign of being heard by them. They seemed more interested in the notes being made by Clarence S. Darrow and his associate counsel for the defense. The attorney ridiculed the defense attempt to show mitigation of punishment by the testimony of mental experts.

Earl McCormick Re-arrested Yesterday by County Officers.

Released on suspended sentence yesterday by Magistrate Hewkshaw in the county court, Earl McCormick, 15, was immediately re-arrested when he left the courtroom and taken to the Woodstock by county police. There he is to be charged with theft of automobile tires and accessories. McCormick acted as truck driver for Frank Lowe and Fred Harrison, plunders excursions throughout the country. He was charged with them of stealing food yesterday, but on the suggestion of Crown Attorney Albert Judd, was let off on suspended sentence. Mr. Judd declared that the lad was merely a victim of poor environment, and had companionship. McCormick was due to appear before Magistrate Graydon this morning for theft of a bicycle, but his forced journey to Woodstock prevented his presence. He was taken on bail supplied by his mother on the bicycle theft charge. The court decided to adjourn hearing on this count.

Prince Regarded As Brave Indeed To Face the Barrage Of U. S. Society Damsels

Ambitious Debutantes Hoping For Chance To Dance With Heir.

ESTATES ARE RENTED

Polo Clubs Preparing For Lavish Entertainment of Royal Visitor.

Special to The Advertiser. Copyright.

New York, Aug. 20.—"A brave chap and a fine sport" that is the consensus of opinion in this city when the Prince of Wales is mentioned. And this topic is uppermost these August days. But the comment does not stop here. After dilating on his experience and the impatience he experienced at the care exercised for his welfare when in the trenches, another thought is expressed. "He is braver still to come over here and face the barrage of ambitious New York society damsels who are angling for the opportunity to meet, dance and chat with him." A career in society here is always one struggle after another, resulting in a very real way in "the survival of the fittest," and now comes the most colossal struggle in years. Persons resident on Long Island, even the newest arrivals, are now regarded in the limelight of prominence only the presence of the royal visitor can shed. The contest now is on to secure "bids" to visit, during the sojourn of the royal party, country houses adjacent to Meadow Brook and Pine Ridge Clubs, where the Prince of Wales will be entertained part of the time.

Estates Bring High Rents. Even the most insignificant estates in the Long Island social sector have been leased for amazing prices to the socially ambitious during the international polo match. The attitude of the socially elect is what is said to amuse the prince when he contemplates the ordeal of "facing the guns" of the four hundred. The only too obvious motives of aspiring dowagers and interested mammas of eligible daughters are passed by as part of the cost of being here apparent to the British crown. What is reported to amaze him without measure are the "mob scenes" of the daughters themselves, these girls of such "proper" training. Whether the scene is laid in the polo fields or golf links, the exclusive restaurant, the ballroom floor, he is at once the cynosure of all eyes and a rush to his immediate presence, the success of which is prevented only by the militant vigilance of persons in the royal party. The "common herd" do not become so perturbed. Nor is it alone the ladies, who provide some of the merriment, a writer who recently visited the prince in London reports another incident of the last visit that still causes him to shudder. He met a large number of men, who, on being introduced, remarked that they had been beaten by him in tennis, where H. R. H. confesses he played but an hour on the courts. Though an able mathematician he has not yet solved the problem of tennis, where he has played him at that time and been so overwhelmingly defeated.

Young Lady Overwhelmed. Another episode is recalled in a young American lady asked to move the prince, though she was urged not to base her future happiness upon the honor, since the million or more other aspirants to the throne are in the field. Uncertain how she should report herself in his presence, she was instructed to act naturally and let the prince take the lead. But when H. R. H. entered the room and approached the debutante, she was overwhelmed with confusion at the impending honor that she remained seated. She was seen to make several attempts to rise, but seemed frozen to the chair. She tried to speak but her words were lost in her stammering lips. Friends nearby whispered only too audibly demanding her to rise. But she could not. At a glance, taking it all in, H. R. H. said, "Please, please, why should she rise? Women do not generally rise when men speak to them do they?" It was a blissfully happy woman who left the presence of royalty after a pleasant chat and a gay dance with him. His consistent gallantry is one of the charms he radiates wherever he goes, one of the qualities which endears him to the English speaking world. People recognize and appreciate this.

LEAVES AUG. 30.

London, Aug. 20.—The Prince of Wales returned to London last night, after having spent a few days at Deauville, France, where he was chiefly occupied playing polo. An amusing incident occurred in connection with the prince's sojourn at Deauville. One evening the doorman at the casino refused his royal highness admission, the doorman at the time. The mistake was quickly rectified, however, and the prince seemed to enjoy the joke.

The prince will sail on the Berengaria on Saturday, Aug. 23, in accordance with the plans arranged some time ago in connection with his brief visit to the United States, and his longer sojourn at his ranch in Alberta, and he will occupy the suite on the ship formerly used by the ex-kaiser, who was fond of cruising around in this vessel (known then as the Imperator), particularly off the shores of the small nations of Europe. During the voyage across the Atlantic, the prince will have his breakfast alone each morning, but otherwise, as already stated, he will mix freely with the other passengers on the Berengaria.

Leaves August 23.

The prince is anxious to reach his ranch at the earliest possible moment, and his stay on Long Island, where he will witness the international polo match between teams representing Great Britain and the United States.

Perilous Trip Tried By Seaman

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Aug. 20.—With Gibraltar as its destination, Dimitrios Sigelakis, a Cretan sailor, next Sunday will embark upon a perilous transatlantic voyage in the 22-foot sailboat carachias, the Greek word for shark. His only motive in making the trip is to experience the thrill of achievement.

States will positively be his only stop on his way to Alberta. What he may do on the return journey is as yet undecided although it is certain he will avoid any public functions. Perhaps the prince will stop over at Jasper Park, Alb. During the time he is holidaying at his ranch he will likely spend the above cable mentioned. The Canadian Press has authority for stating that the Prince of Wales and his suite appreciated and were extremely gratified by the privacy which attended the visit of his royal highness to Canada last year, and the prince is looking forward to similar privacy on his forthcoming visit. "The prince's ranch is a real treat for him and everybody he met, both in the vicinity of the ranch and at Banff was most kind and considerate to him," declared the authorities today.

Recent despatches from Washington stated that the prince would call on President Coolidge before leaving the United States for his Alberta ranch and would be entertained at a private luncheon at the White House and later the cabinet members and their wives would be presented to his royal highness. These despatches intimated that for the purpose of the call on the president the prince would temporarily take his official title, instead of the title of Lord Renfrew under which he will be known while in Canada. The above cable indicates that the prince will travel incognito throughout his journey to Alberta and will make no other stop in the United States but on Long Island.

CONSERVATIVES HOLD PICNIC AT STRATFORD

Success of Affair Is Threatened As Rain Continues To Fall.

Canadian Press Despatch. Stratford, Aug. 20.—With rain threatening, the success of the Western Ontario Conservative gathering here today, as a picnic, is rather problematical. The weather earlier in the morning, however, was nice enough to induce throngs of Conservatives from the district to motor to the city and by noon hundreds of cars thronged the main streets. The early afternoon train from London brought a large number of guests, and the city was soon filled with the throngs of the party. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the opposition, arrived in Stratford from St. Marys, his former home, on this train, and was given a rousing welcome at the station.

The program of speeches commenced at 3 o'clock, preceded by a sports program and a baby-jumping competition at which Mr. Meighen is to be chairman of the judges. His Worship Mayor Brown will extend the program on behalf of the city. The first speaker will be Mr. Guelph, Hon. James S. Martin, Ontario minister of agriculture. Hon. Mr. Martin addressed the noon-day luncheon of the Rotary Club today.

A. J. McVittie, division superintendent of the city's inventory department of the Bell Telephone Company, reports that this week will see the completion of the work in connection with the inventory of the company in the city. The work here has been proceeding during the past few weeks.

The work throughout the entire district has been proceeding with similar despatch, Mr. McVittie reports. The men employed in the city will be transferred to St. Thomas and district the beginning of next week, it is expected.

CITY HAS POWER TO CONTROL HALLS

Bylaw Urged To Prevent Young Girls Going to Dances Alone.

WRITE TO TORONTO

That London has the necessary power and authority to regulate dance pavilions as her council may see fit, is the opinion of the attorney general's department expressed in a letter received today by the city clerk.

In this letter it is stated that the city of Toronto has already under the act taken the matter into its own hands, and that there is nothing to prevent London doing the same thing. The city clerk is writing the city clerk of Toronto to find out what action was taken by the city in regulating the halls. Mayor Wenige believes that a by-law can be framed which will meet the case and solves the problem of the girl under eighteen who either goes alone to a public dance hall or without a proper escort. He thinks that either the young girl should stay away altogether from these places or they should be accompanied by their parents or by some near relation, such as a brother or an aunt. He does not approve of two young girls going together, or that this arrangement offers any safe protection to them. The matter will come up for discussion in the council at the next meeting.

AVON CAMP BOYS GIVEN LESSON ON OUTDOORS

Join in Hike Conducted by Experienced Campers This Week.

An observation hike, conducted by experienced campers, was one of the delightful features of the Avon camp this week. This boys' retreat is located on the banks of the London River, a short distance from Stratford, and is under the supervision of the Stratford Knights of Columbus and the Rotary Club. Several London boys are in attendance, and the camp director is Brother Sylvan, a member of the Christian Brothers' high school teaching staff in this city. The infinite number of wonderful things mother nature nourishes in the great outdoors were explained to the hikers. The various trees with their peculiarities were observed, and the rocks, too, came in for some attention. In this connection the boys were greatly interested in the discovery of yellow metal known as fool's gold. A strange waste, several specimens of this fungus and unusual rock formations were the spoils brought back to camp. Practically every boy has been noted for some good turn, the camp director, Mr. J. H. Baker, is doing at least one good turn every day is being carried out remarkably well. A reorganization of groups has been rendered necessary due to some of the lads leaving for their homes. One is now composed of scouts alone, and the former rivalry that has arisen between the divisions is keen.

Ten boys won the pennant Monday. The boys in this unit are members of the Eagle Patrol. They are: Freeman Wahl, Desmond Purcell, Pascal Pidgeon, John McDermott and Bernard Garschke.

CORNER OF OLD ENGLAND HIDES ON LONDON CORNER

In a downtown section of King street, a corner of old England is hidden itself. Within hearing of the rumbling Dundas traffic, it is hidden from the ken of the average citizen. Only the student and the connoisseur are aware of its existence. Musty books, yellow with age, poetry, drama, romance crowd its shelves and overflow to the floor. Carvings from India and Japan, Hindu idols, ancient china and crockery scatter themselves through the little shop, and pile themselves in the windows. The place is a treasure house of old-world romance. People have been under the impression that this is a place where the dogs to run about their own lawns in the front of the house, but this is positively breaking the hearts of the dog lovers of the city. Usually dogs are allowed to be on the front lawn of homes cause considerable trouble for motorists and bicyclists. This is the cause of much trouble both to the rider and driver for if the dog gets in the way of an automobile he is run down and off his wheel to chase the dog away.

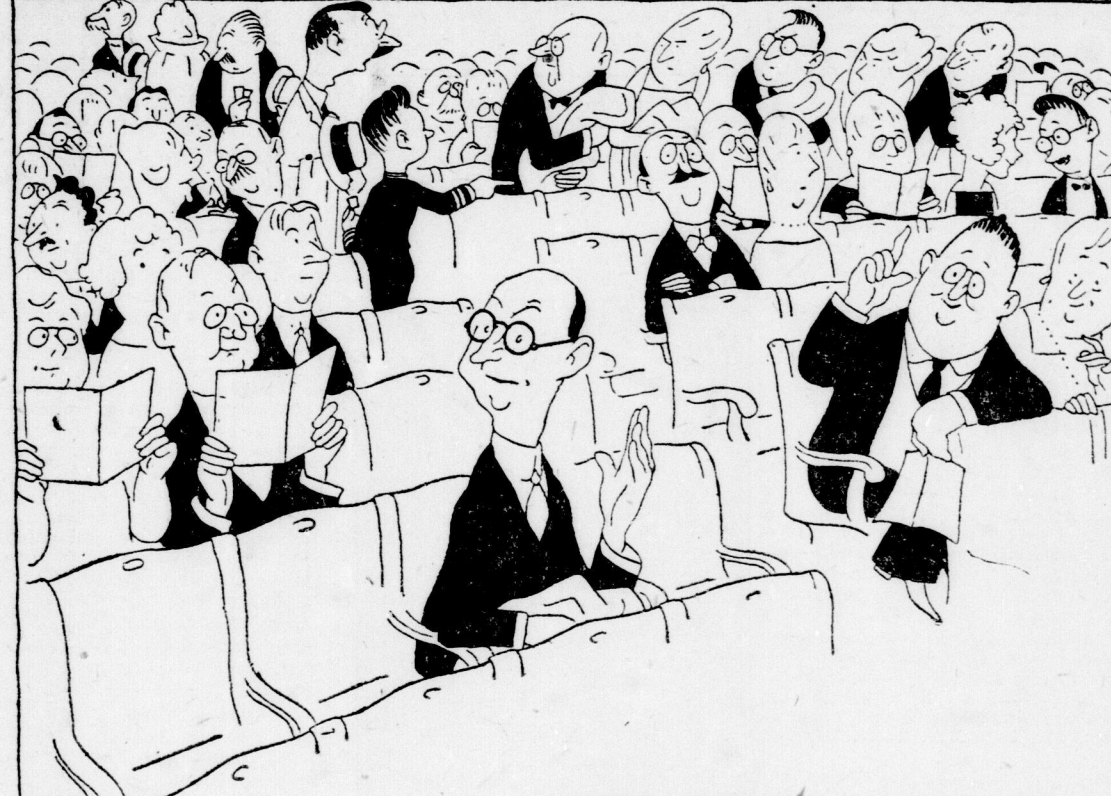

CROPS BEST IN 40 YEARS, OPTIMISTIC FARMER SAYS

"Crops in Middlesex are the best in forty years," says a farmer of this county. This was the assertion of a district farmer to The Advertiser today. The Advertiser sought confirmation of the optimistic statement from B. A. Finn, district agricultural representative. "That's probably a bit strong to say they are the best in 40 years," Mr. Finn declared, "but they are certainly very satisfactory. Oats are coming along fine and the wheat yield will be enormous. In some sections farmers will get a bushels to the acre. All we require is a few days' warm weather and the assertion about the crops being the best in 40 years, may prove correct."

TRADES OF UNEMPLOYED REACH 55 IN LONDON

There are now 233 names on the list of unemployed at the city relief office, 34 having registered since Monday morning. The list of trades given in by the men has reached 55 in number, having been enlarged to include shoemaker, manufacturer, brass finisher, cabinet maker, wood machinist, brass moulder and butcher. The registration is reported to be slowing up considerably.

CITY CLERK RECALLS DAYS OF SIR J. CARLING

Preparing Address To Be Read Before Historical Society.

Many personal recollections of Sir John Carling will be included in the address which City Clerk Sam Baker is preparing to read before the London Historical Society this winter. He is spending his spare time in looking over old notes, made when he was still teaching school and at a time when he often dropped in on Sir John for a talk on political and historical matters. Sir John had a fund of interesting stories to do with the fathers of Confederation, and of the times, and many anecdotes of Sir John Macdonald. These, together with the general history of the city gathered from old residents, and the old archives of London will form the basis of the lecture. Mr. Baker gave a very similar address some years ago, which was greatly enjoyed by the members of the society, and as it happens to be a subject on which he is particularly well read and particularly interested, he always obtains an attentive audience.

DOGS RUNNING LOOSE CAUSE MUCH TROUBLE

Inspector Tustin Warns Animals Must Always Be Accompanied.

Twenty-seven complaints were sent in to the Humane Society yesterday and all these were attended too by Inspector Tustin. The complaints were mostly due to dogs running around the streets loose. Inspector Tustin states that a dog is not allowed to be upon the streets in any place without the owner. People have been under the impression that this is a place where the dogs to run about their own lawns in the front of the house, but this is positively breaking the hearts of the dog lovers of the city. Usually dogs are allowed to be on the front lawn of homes cause considerable trouble for motorists and bicyclists. This is the cause of much trouble both to the rider and driver for if the dog gets in the way of an automobile he is run down and off his wheel to chase the dog away.

STREET CLEANER PICKS UP MANY DEAD CATS IN CITY

Who is the cat poisoner in London East, out on the Hamilton road? A street cleaner in the employ of the city reported to his chief yesterday that in the past week he has picked up 16 dead cats and taken them to an incinerator. He believed they were poisoned.

He says that he has no objection to collecting garbage and that he doesn't mind a cat or two once in a while, but that this steady run of cats is getting on his nerves. He appealed to the humane inspector, in the meantime hoping that either the poisoner will take a rest or that the remaining cats will have more sense than their departed brethren.

BEAUTIES OF LONDON PRAISED BY EXPERT

Chicago Commissioner Pays a Visit to Parks—Sees First Electric Stove.

Joseph Mersot, parks commissioner of West Chicago, under whose care $20,000 acres are operated by the city as parks and recreation centers, told E. V. Buchanan, general manager of the public utilities commission yesterday that he had never seen such a fine exhibition in a civic park as he had seen in the center of Victoria Park. Mr. Mersot who was in the city while passing through in the course of a tour of Ontario, was taken round the London parks by Mr. Buchanan and was very much surprised, not only at Springfield and Victoria, but also with the civic playgrounds. Though coming from one of the largest commercial centers of the United States he had never seen an electric stove and spent some time in the offices of the commission looking over one.

CITIZEN IS CONCERNED OVER POOR, SICK CROW

Although the officials of the Humane Society had received calls to look after almost every kind of animal and had also given advice to a number of people on the care of animals, the latest request by the public is what is the best method to use in bringing a sick crow back to normal health. This question came from a kind-hearted Londoner who had found the crow in his back yard one morning in an exhausted condition. Mr. Tustin did not state what tonic he prescribed for the bird but the best one would be to grow a field of corn and turn the crow loose in it and if it didn't get better in that way, he never would.

KITCHENERITES PLEASED WITH LONDON'S PARKS

Superintendent Koehler and Commissioners Donohue, Ford, Bean and Vogelstang of the Kitchener Parks Commission spent the day in London yesterday and were the guests of the London Public Utilities Commission. They made a tour of inspection in the morning and had lunch at the Hunt Club with several of the commissioners in the afternoon. They were pleased with the fresh appearance of the London parks and playgrounds, and congratulated the commission on them. Coming from a city where town planning is already in effect and where beauty in a city is readily appreciated and understood, they were ready to admit the excellence of the Forest City in the way of parks.

Sentence Suspended. Mrs. Henry Willis, charged with assaulting her neighbor, was up before Police Magistrate Henry Gorman today, and after hearing a lengthy list of evidence she was suspended on payment of costs and the lady bound over to keep the peace.

Snuel Jacks, proprietor of a south ward store, this morning displayed two of the worst black eyes seen in the local hall of justice for a long time as a result of a feature along an assault by Steve Hurlock and Norman Montague, local youths. What evidence was taken before the case adjourned to Friday brought out the fact that the Jacks store in the south ward was the scene of a battle Saturday night, in which the scales and Mr. Jacks came out as the victor in the argument the worse for wear.

Heaviest Shipment.

Declared to be the heaviest shipment ever made by express in this section of the C. P. R. a ship anchor, weighing 4,000 pounds, was taken off the late westbound passenger train last night and is now being fitted to the steam engine. Dick, owned by the National Sand and Material Co. SPRUCE UP THE HOME, MAYOR'S NEW SLOGAN

Urges Painting and Minor Repairs to Aid Unemployment Situation.

"If everyone would paint his house and do minor repairs it would go some way to helping the present unemployment," said Mayor Wenige this morning.

"There are lots of houses in the city out of the 15,000 that need a coat of paint and many of them need minor repairs. Now I believe that many people refrain from doing this work because they think the assessment will be raised. But the assessment is only raised every fifth year on permanent property, so they need not be raised. If they do not more than paint and effect minor repairs, the assessment will not be raised. This, of course, would not include new buildings such as garages. "It takes a lot of bricks, you know, to build a house, and it takes a lot of money to build a house. If we all get together and do this work, it will at least help the community to meet the situation." Mr. Wenige urged the aldermen to call he will move this idea as a motion and hopes that the aldermen will see his point of view and agree with it.

HORSES INSPECTED.

Out of 86 horses inspected by George Tustin, inspector of the humane society yesterday only three were ordered to be put in the care of veterinarians. All the horses were being used in construction work in the city and county. Those ordered layed off were all lame and it was almost impossible for any of them to walk.
