BRITISH ARMY PROMOTIO

The debate in parliament of estimates has brought out some things. Although promotion in army is no longer obtained by its still retained in the hands of racy by methods that would give an American politic. For an American politicing. For during the past year some two tions to the ranks of commission tions to the ranks of commission were made from among enlisted i seemed all very good and enough the service, but enquiry shows to one of these twenty officers are tlemen of aristocratic families with the understanding, and with the understanding, and so the promise, that after a brief pranks they would be promoted not very stimulating to brave at veterans of campaigns, who find put under the orders of callow y universities. The fact is, that system of civil and military pre England is delusive. While the tion is generally open to every c tions are attached which practice appointments to the upper orders.
