THE LOAN COMPANIES must return big dividends or else the stockholders would cry out against the managers. This serv of thing does not apply to lenders of private money in large amounts—who are more particular about first class security than high interest—hence the advantage of knowing the sources of money in high interest—hence the advantage of knowing the sources of money in private hands for invisament, which knowledge we have gained by years of special attention to this branch of our business. Borrowers of large loans can save time and money by applying at first to us. R, J. GRIFFITH & CO., 16 King-street eas
