

cus Aurelius. — The Palaces of Rome and their Statues. — The Villas of Rome and their Gardens. — Too much Splendor and Magnificence. . . . .	288
--	-----

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Lenten Season. — The manifold Throng of Visitors and Pilgrims. — The threefold Charm of Rome. — The End of Lent. — Holy Week. — A vast Crowd. — The Pope's Blessing. — The Illumination of St. Peter's. — Innumerable Lights. . . . .	299
---	-----

CHAPTER XXV.

A Discussion. — Holy Week versus the Glorious Fourth. — St. Peter's and Boston State House. — Patriotism. — Sudden Interruption. — Painful Discovery. — Most embarrassing Situation. — Perplexity of the Boys. — Despair of Uncle Moses. . . . .	308
--	-----

CHAPTER XXVI.

An early Wakening. — The Prætorian Barracks. — The friendly Cicerone. — The Chamber full of Relics. — Wonderful Souvenirs of the Past. — An extensive Purchase. — A Discovery. — Grand Explanation. — Farewell to the Seven Hills. . . . .	320
--	-----