

there is nothing to produce a greater degree of cold than if the garments had been dry."

A DAY IN AUTUMN.

BY LORD LEIGH.

"Heaven speed the plough! Oh, on his natal soil
 May the bold husbandman ne'er vainly toil:
 Long may the cheering voice of praise impel,
 His work with honest pride his bosom swell.
 All charms with which our social life is graced,
 Varied enjoyments, to the plough are traced.
 Homaged by science, Ceres waves her wand.
 And lo! exuberant crops adorn the land.
 Her foison to increase, inventive skill
 Creates improvements yearly—ever will;
 And learned chemists generously impart
 To tillers of the earth their secret art;
 In what proportion clay with sand to mix,
 And how ammonia volatile to fix.

Now statesmen strive each other to surpass
 In speaking on guano, stock, and grass;
 And tell you, with their calculations sure,
 What weight of turnips gives some pet manure.
 And farmers wonder how that minds immersed
 In state affairs, in farm-craft are so versed."

SONG OF THE BRITISH FARMER.

(The following song, just published, is written by Mr. Carpenter, and composed by David Lee.)

Here's a song for the British farmer bold,
 With his golden grain and his cattle fold:
 A loftier theme perchance may be,
 But here's power and wealth to his old roof tree!
 The sailor may honour the rolling seas,
 The soldier may boast of his victories;
 But they fight for the land, and stand or fall,
 For the tillage and plough, that give health to all!

Chorus—Here's a song, &c.

All titles and honours and powers must yield
 To him who rules in the harvest field:
 For kings of the soil are the good and the brave,
 Who till the land where the corn-fields wave,
 Whose flocks are fed on her herbage green,
 Whose countless herds in the vales are seen,
 Whose home is content, and whose blessing is health,
 And whose labour gives to our isle its wealth!

Chorus—Here's a song, &c.

Affection for the dead is the memory of the heart.
 Courage to think is infinitely more rare than courage to act.

Whoever finds pleasure in vice, and pain in virtue, is a novice in both.

A curse is a stone flung up to the heavens, to return on the head of him that sent it.

Strong passions work wonders when there is a greater strength of reason to curb them.

The absentee tax in Russia for a family of three persons amounts to 240*l.* per annum.

We are all complaining that our days are few, yet acting as though there would be no end to them.

We all complain of the shortness of time, and yet we have much more than we know what to do with.

Why did Adam, when alone, find the day very long? —Because 'twas always morning without Eve.
 Why did Jupiter descend to Danae in a shower of gold? To prove that he was one of the reigning sovereigns.

A false friend is like a shadow on a dial, which appears in fine weather, but vanishes at the approach of a cloud.
