STATEMENTS

Beyond this, we have come to Jakarta to chart the future direction of APEC as we stand on the threshold of the Pacific century. Here in Jakarta last month and again over the past two days, Ministers declared clearly that we are ready to challenge ourselves and our world trading partners to start the process of further trade and investment liberalization. APEC has already commissioned and received some excellent outside advice on this issue, in addition to that which we received from our officials. Both the APEC Eminent Persons Group and the Pacific Business Forum echoed a central theme: this region's increasingly critical role in driving the world economy. Both underscored our fundamental commitment to freer trade and investment as the engine of future growth. Still, a number of questions remain unanswered. Are we looking for APEC to drive global free trade forward by accelerating liberalization on a MFN [Most Favoured-Nation] basis? Or are we aiming for a more comprehensive — but regional — free trade area? Can we deepen our integration while broadening our membership? How will APEC relate to other existing free trade areas, especially to the NAFTA [North American Free Trade Agreement]? We have created a mechanism and a structure that seems to be moving forward by its own momentum. We have yet to define a destination. . . . The government of Canada, in co-operation with the Asia Pacific Foundation, will shortly open a Canadian Education Information Centre in Jakarta. From health care to engineering, language training to agriculture, Canadian educational institutions can assist Indonesia's economic growth.

Notes for an Address by the Honourable Roy MacLaren, Minister for International Trade, to a Joint Meeting of the Indonesia-Canada Business Council, The Canadian Business Association and the Canada-Indonesia Business Council, Jakarta, Indonesia, November 13, 1994, no. 94/70

Press Statement Issued Jointly by the UN and NATO

October 28, 1994

Following meetings in New York, the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) have reached a series of understandings concerning the use of NATO airpower in Bosnia and Herzegovina in support of the relevant UN Security Council Resolutions. Based on these understandings, which have been transmitted to UNPROFOR and to the NATO Military Authorities, NATO air strikes will be conducted on a timely basis.

Environment Canada Launches its Green Lane on the Information Highway

November 9, 1994

An innovative public service, that will provide Canadians and other people around the world with a variety of environmental information instantly via computer on a 24-hour basis, was officially launched today by the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Environment, Sheila Copps. Dubbed Environment Canada's "Green Lane, on the Information Highway" the service is available to anyone with access to the internet. "Our government is committed to ensuring a healthy environment for a healthy economy and healthy Canadians. Our Green Lane on the information highway is an innovative way of instantly providing people with the knowledge they need to make sound decisions and take action," said Minister Copps.
