

objectives and priorities, which are the subject of an international consensus, make Canadian co-operation not only an effective and concrete contribution to the development of the Third World but also a contribution to North-South reconciliation.

