A FIGURED CHAMBRAY.

A lovely little frock in pink satined chambray with embroidery trimming about the neck and sleeves and a belt of black mesaline.

Among the fashionable materials for children's dresses are satin-figured chambrays. The model shown here is developed in two shades of pink. It is made without a lining, having body and short sleeves in one and a square neck finished with buttonhole scallops. There is a suggestion of a shoulder yoke, which is delicately embroidered. For a girl of average size 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material are required to make the dress. The cutting is simple, but the shoulder yoke may be a little difficult for the inexperienced dressmaker. Begin with the waist, lapping shoulder edges of back on front, notches even; stitch; then close under-arm and sleeve seams as notched. Turn hem in back at notches. Center-back indicated by large "O" perforations. Gather lower edge between double "X" perforations. Sew narrow belt to lower edge, notches and edges even; small "o" perforation at under-arm seam. Sew collar to neck edge as notched; large "O" perforation indicates center-back. Sew cut to short sleeve as notched. Join side and back girths of skirt as notched; close center-back seam. Form inverted pleat, creasing on lines of slot perforations; bring folded edges to seams and press. Sew to belt, center-backs and front edges even. Adjust wide belt, bringing corresponding single large and double small "o" perforations in belt, front and in side girths together and tack. Crease front and front girth on slot perforations; bring folded edge to corresponding small "o" perforations; tack to position on belt and press. Turn hem at lower edge of dress on double "oo" perforations. Nothing makes a more effective finish for the dress than a belt of black mesaline silk ribbon, as this is softer and more youthful looking than taffeta or satin.

MAY RESIGN PORTFOLIO.
Hon. Dr. Roche's Health Unequal to Task.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—The continued ill-health of Hon. Dr. Roche is giving rise to the belief that a change in the administration of the Department of the Interior is not far off. Dr. Roche recently underwent a severe operation and will, it is understood, undergo another less serious one before his return to Ottawa. It is understood that under these conditions he is not likely to resume the permanent administration of so heavy a department as that of the Interior.

PRICE OF TEA DROPPED.
Toronto Houses Lowered 10-Cent Increase to 5 Cents.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—The wholesale tea houses have announced that the price of tea, which was increased ten cents per pound when the war commenced, had been reduced by five cents. The reason given by the merchants for the continuation of the additional five cents per pound is the fact that there is war risk insurance to be paid on all shipments.
