WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET

Brokers' Opinions

Production of silk dates far into antiquity, and for ages the manner of its production was kept secret. Up to the sixth century A.D. all raw silk was imported into Europe from China, but the Byzantine Emperor Justinian induced two monks to travel into China to procure silk worm eggs and though the export of them was punishable by death, these monks succeeded in bringing back a quantity concealed in the hollows of their pilgrims staves.

From Byzantium, silk cultivation spread into Greece and Syria, thence into Spain, and thence successively into Sicily, Naples, Northern Italy and France, being established in Italy in the sixteenth century.

Worm is given transportation facilities which few other commodities enjoy. The bales of skeins are stowed carefully in the vessels which transport them across the Pacific, and in such a manner that they can be speedily and safely discharged upon arrival at the Canadian or American port. No time is lost. Special trains made up of passenger bagage equipment await the arrival of the vessel if it docks at Vancouver as do the Empress liners of the Canadian Pacific, and once the valuable cargo has been sealed into the cars the train proceeds towards its destination, often making better time than the regular passenger trains.

For the reason that the route is more direct, many their pilgrims staves.

From Byzantium, silk cultivation spread into Greece and Syria, thence into Spain, and thence successively into Sicily, Naples, Northern Italy and France, being established in Italy in the sixteenth century. established in Italy in the sixteenth century.

Various determined attempts have been made, principally between the years 1622 and 1839 to establish the silk industry in America, resulting at one time in a not inconsiderable production, but the excessive cost of the labor involved in the rearing of the worms and in the reeling of the raw silk from the cocoons as compared with the trifling cost of such labor in Europe and Asia, has rendered it impossible to produce raw silk at commercial prices on this continent.

Most of the silk imported to America comes from Japan, Italy and China where, also, the humidity of the atmosphere contributes no little to the success of the industry in those countries. The greatest importation is from the Flowery Kingdom, and this mostly in the raw-silk form as it is reeled from the cocoons.

Silk is valuable. In one consignment of a few hundred bales, hundreds of 'housands of dollars are tied up, and for this reason, that no time may be lost in making up the raw material and placing the finished goods upon the market, the product of the little silk industry in those countries.

The silk was delivered in New York about midnight April 4th, the through time from Yokohama to New York being 13 days, 8 hours, and 13 minutes, calendar time. This constituted a record run as far as freight is ervice via St. John, N.B., or the St. Lawrence route being regularly maintained.

NEVER ABSENT,

NEVER TARDY,

With various claims of unusual school attendance records appearing in newspapers, the Fredericton Gleaner says Miss Helen M. Scott, now teacher in the commercial course of the Whitby Ladies? College at Whitby, Ont. attended the public schools of Fredericton for sixteen terms and never was absent nor tardy and won fourteen certificates for scholarship. Miss Scott is a daughter of Major and Mrs. John S. Scott of Fredericton.

Building Year.

The Fredericton Gleaner says that lumber prices are about $4 a thousand lower than a year ago, and adds:

"Large arrivals in the eastern market of cargoes of lumber from the Pacific Coast via the Panama Canal have been one of the causes of prices sagging in New York and Boston, the points in the United States market to which New Brunswick lumbermen ship largely, while the reports which come as to the outlook in the British market are no more optimistic. Large quantities of lumber which was manufactured in the Pacific Coast states in anticipation of being shipped to Japan for the reconstruction operations there, following the earthquake which destroyed Yokohama and portions of Tokio as well as other cities, is now being thrown upon the U. S. market. In other words Japan is not absorbing the quantity of manufactured lumber from America which
