(FROM BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE.) O. Home! art thou in every place,

O'er all the boundless earth-The centre of eternal space, Where'er thou hast thy birth.

They say, "a thousand miles from Home," As from the dearest thing That links our souls; the more we roam,

The more to it we .cling. What though ten thousand miles we run, And add ten thousand! more, There is a Home-'tis like the sua That travels still before.

Though not for us-though all be Yet fondest hearts there be, In all the world's unmeasured range,

No home elsewhere can see.

O'er peopled realms, or deserts vast, There still One Voice was heard-'Tis Home-Home there her lot hath cast, Of man, or beast, or bird.

Within the forest's deepest shade, Ten thousand depths around-Home for each living thing is made That creepeth on the ground.

Where life hath neither bed nor lair, In srleuce and in gloom, Home find a lonely flowerer there, The worm within the tomb.

Home, Home-it is eternal love-His presence and His praise-O'er all, around, below, above, Creation's boundless ways-

E'en in the poor defiled heart, The present home of sin. God said Let wickedness depart, And We will dwell therein.

Blest Spirit, thou that Home prepare, Do thou make clean, secure, Lest Love should seek his dwelling there, His Home, nor find it pure.

Thou, when this earthly home shall fall As built on erring sands-Me to the heavenly mansion call,

Prepared, not made with hands,

That home of love, and joy, and peace, No sorrow in the brest-From troubling, where the wicked cease, And where the wicked rest.

EXTRAORDINARY CHARGE OF CRUELTY AT SEA .- On Saturday Thomas Clark, mate of the ship Tropic, from Barbadoes, was brought before the bench on a warrant charging him with a serious and violent assault on John Cracknell, a seaman on board that vessels. Cracknell, who has gone mad through his all treatment he received, is confined in the lunatic asylum at Bithnal-green, in consequence of which the defendant's solicitor appeared to stop the investigation, he being absent, which was immediately overruled by the bench. John Johnson, an able seaman on board the vessel, stated that Cracknell sailed with them from Barbadoes being then in good health .-About five days after leaving the island the mate struck Cracknell and kicked him and on the follow day, as he was going down the hatchway he again assaulted him and threw a handspike at his head, which hitting him inflicted a dreadful wound in his head and eye .-Cracknell fell down senseless, and on animation being restored became a lunatic. Clark, finding the man troublesome, lashed him down on the deck, where he remained for 24 hours, the defendant striking him as he passed. The wretched man having called out to the defendant repeatedly to be released from the cords, the mate undid them, but had him lashed to the butt of the bowsprit, where he kept him exposed to all weathers, tied down by his hands and feet for three weeks. In his crossexamination, witness denied that Cracknell had shown any signs of insanity before the defendant's ill-usage of him, the man having cone his work well, and behaved himself reasonably and properly. The witness further said that the poor creature calling out to be put on shore when they arrived in the Thames the complainant had him put on land, beating him with a ropels end until he arrived ashore. blows. In his defence, Clark, said that he was induced to act harshly in consequence of the man's violence when he became insane. The magistrate said that after making the man mad, the defendant had no right to punish him for the injury he had himself inflicted, and ordered him to find bail in £200, to appear and take his trial in the Admiralty Sessions.

THE BITER BIT. - On Sunday morning a railroad man called Jem, went into the inn at West Haddon, and leaving his basket in the kitchen, went into the tap to drink a pint of beer. The landlord, being tempted by curiosity, opened the basket, in which he found a leveret, and doubting Jem's either being licensed or allowed to shoot, he thought he ran no risk of heing publicly complained of he rung the changes upon his gaest, which he did by abstracting the hare and putting a dead cat in its place. On getting home, Jem found out the fraud, and returning with his basket to the inn, he found mine host had gone to Church, and being past 11 o'clock, the servant refused to draw him any ale. After much persuasion he induced the girl to leave the kitchen to get some spring water, and in her absence he opened a large pot on the fire, in which was a fine leg of mutton, and very ingeniously exchanged the tabby for it, carrying home the prize. Jem sent his brother there after church time, making him fully acquainted with the facts-and the landlord, wanting some broth, ordered a basin out of the pot; not liking either colour or flavour, he caused an examination, and instantly detected the cause, and its author, on witnessing the cat's mortal remains. "Gh," said Jem's brother, "I dares for to say-that there cat first eat the mutton, and then committed suicide to avoid detection."

LORD BACON'S OPINION OF TALL MEN. -A French ambassador at an audience with James I, conversed with extraordinary rapidity, gesticulation, and grimace. James afterwards asked Lord Bacon, what he thought of the ambassador?? "Sire," replied the philosopher, "he appears a fine, tall, well built man," "I meant" interrupted the King, what do you think of his head:" "Sire," answered Bacon, "men of high stature very often resemble houses of four or five stories, where the upper one is always the worst furnished."

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY .- Mr. Thomas Blanchard, Member of the American Institute, has discovered a method by which steam boat explosious, arising from carelessness, intoxication, or foothardiness, will be altogether prevented. The invention is so contrived, that when the water in the boiler is reduced below a given quantity, the door through which fuel is supplied closes, and cannot be opened until the complement of water is made up.

SPECULATIVE PHILDSOPHY .- The liberty of speculation (says Sir John Herschel) which we possess in the domains of theory, is not like the wild licence of the slave broke loose from his fetters, but rather like that of the freeman who has learned the lessons of self-restraint in the school of just subordination. the ultimate objects we pursue, in the highest theories, are the same as those of the lowest inductions, and the means by which we can most surely attain them have a close analogy to those which we found successful in such inferior cases.

TEMPERANCE AND SNUFFT-TAKING .-"The present age," said Mr. Philipson, "is an age pregnant with quackery .-Every scheme that is fitted to charm the vulgar is set forth as the regeneration of the ace. Diseased are to be cured by homœopathy, men are to be made immortal by animal magnetism, and morals are to expand into a millenium by dint of tee-totalism and temperance societies. I hate drunkenness and immorality, but even more do I hate the mercenary spirit which turns these to a good account, and daubing the wall with 'untempered mortar keeps men from solid and real panaceas. The whole system of temperance and tee-total societies is but a new edtion of Monasticism. The monk retired from the world rather than ' use, as abusing it,' and the anti-whisky man runs from blue ruin and its sister spirit, rather than resist the intemperate use of them. Both are indolent ways of overcoming evil and runious passions .--What think ye o' sneeshin'-takin?" said one of the old elders. 'I'm thinking it's na beter than dram-drinking.' Ma mull are maun be an ee sare to sae the particular partialities; but it will need muckle logic and main divinity than peopli or pen can shak out to gar me adjure the custom o' three score an ten.
