AROUND THE TOWN.

A lady who indulges occasionally in reminiscences, for the entertainment of her very select friends, recalled the other was recalled the other evening over a quiet cup of tea this incident which occurred, oh, very many years ago, on the advent to St. John of a family of nouveau riche who aspired to storm the citadel of the "four hundred." "After a time." ahe said. "I dropped in one afternoon and found Mrs. X—really very nice, but seemingly a trifie embarrased. Size wore a near house gown, such as no one need have been ashamed of, although it was not her regular 'day." On coming away, however, her embarrasment twas explained. As I was leaving she rough treatment at sea by masters to untended this as a formal call, but I am so glad to perceive from the fact that you are not wearing gloves, that it isn'c."

One of the most delighted visitors to St. John during the gala event of last week was a dear old lady from the country who had never been on a ferryboat before. too bad? But it strikes me the Canadian officers will not worry much. And it's not the first time the English officers were dissatisfied with Halifax customs. Not long ago some of them objected to the men of their companies visiting at the same houses as their officers. What I mean is that the soldier sometimes courted the problem of the officers and be at the soldier would have at the soldier sometimes. mean is that the soldier sometimes courted the cook, while the officer paid his attentions to her mistress. Often the result was that while "Lieut. Trevelyn," in the parlor, sang madrigals to the daughter of the best decorated boats. My friends had got a rocky old boat, "rocky" in more senses than one, but had fixed her up very tastefully, with a couple of rows of Chinese lanterns hung between poles upright at bow and stern, and other lights testooned along the sides, besides some transparencies. It was a dark right and fixed her up the cook, while the officer paid his attentions to her mistress. Often the result was that while "Lieut. Trevelyn," in the parlor, sang madrigals to the daughter of the house, honest Tommy Atkins told his tale of love to Nora in the kitchen. What a shock that must have been to the hyper-sensitive officers. It was a dark night, save for the clear starlight, and the river looked like fairyland. Crowds of spectators lined the banks, with music, laughter and gay chatter. My friends had had no remote aspiration of capturing a prize, but had merely got out the old boat because they wanted to be in the crowd for the fun of it and have some fun with the others. They began to regret their experiment when they discovered that the boat was leaking like a seive, and they had decided to get her ashore as quickly as possible when they were surprised to find that they were called back with several others of the handsomest craft to again pass before the reviewing stand. By this time their boat had made so much water that bailing became necessary and as the old tub was rowed by one aused the boat to roll heavily from side o side, and the boys were heartily glad when they were able to escape from the ine and set foot on dry land. But they corralled, trotted up to the committee and unanimously presented with the first prize, the chairman stating that there had been some hesitation as to the preminence of their exhibit until in the second passing the marked skill with which the young men undulated their older. The other day Chatterer happened to be in a certain store where tickets for a free lecture course were given away. A lady entered and approaching the proprietor said. "I want two tickets for the lecture course please." ("Certainly," replied the proprietor, as he handed her the wished for eards. At the same time there was a gleam in his eye that to Chatterer appeared mysferious but I said nothing. When the proprietor returned he said, "Now there's a woman who takes no more interest in that lecture course tight. In the word, was the more of those tickets and I'll bet my last cent she won't use one." "Perhaps she wants them for a friend," I retorted.

"Friend, nothing," was the reply, "The only attraction they have for her is that they are free. She'd monopolize the whole issue if she could and she's not alone either. There are lots more of her species in this town, people who will willingly race all over town to procure for nothing what they don't want." "Well, is she mean?" I asked. "No, she's not; she cares no more for a dollar than you or I do for a dime. It's simply a fad." And Chatterer departed, pondering deeply.

Many of the presentees were extremely nervous and anxious, and when Sergt. Rogers requested one card frequently he was given two. One young lady, of this city, was quite overcome with excitement and, after giving the sergeant her two cards and having one returned she evidently became lost to the world about her. Major Maude made the usual announcement, but the young lady seemed totally oblivious and quietly walked past the duke and duches, not realizing where she was until in front of Lord and Lady Minto, where she made a slight bow and passed on. The royal presence appeared to dazzle many, and was a sixenless and more unostentatious.

Then, as the sprinter shot by, they marvelled at what could be causing a policeman into such a display of athletic prowess.

They glanced askance, and, scenting senting attention, doubled in clamorous pursuit.

Sation, doubled in clamorous pursuit. A gentleman from Halifax told me the other day that some of the English officers stationed there are inclined to snub the Canadian boys of the Third Special Service Battalion, on garrison duty in the Wellington barracks. They claim that the Canadians have no aristocratic blood in their veins and consequently are not entitled to consideration. Now isn't that too bad? But it strikes me the Canadian officers will not worry much. And it's them to improve their methods of farming.

T. G. Raynor dealt with the Selection and Cross Breeding of Animals and Unprofitable Farming Made Profitable. These subjects brought out a good deal of discussion and a number of the farmens gave their opinions and asked questions.

F. E. Sharp dealt with pork raising for bacon purposes, the selection and care of the brood sow and the summer feeding of pigs. The discussion showed that the no doubt much more could and would be done in the matter of raising pork.

The meeting was also addressed by J.

F. Tilley, dairy superintendent, who has been in this locality for a couple of days working up a greater interest in the creamery business. Mr. Tilley's remarks were well received and it seemed evident that the farmers would co-operate in this work and endeavor to run their creamery during the coming winter.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Industrial Situation Satisfactory -- Fancy Goods for Holidays Already--Reports of St. John and Other Canadian Cities Are Good.

New York, Oct. 25.—R. G. Dum & Oo, in its weekly review of trade tomorrow will say: With mills, shops, factories and furnaces assured of full operation until the end of the year as a rule, and many contracts already running far into 1902, there is no occasion for anxiety regarding the industrial situation. Jobbers are still urgently asking prompt deliveries by manufacturers of staple lines, while opening transactions in fancy goods for the holidays are unusually early, showing that dealers anticipate a large trade. Retail distribution of heavyweight wearing apparel and other seasonable goods is checked by the tardiness of low temperatures, which is extremely fortunate in many cases where makers have been unable to fill orders according to specifications. Prices of commodities rule firm and collections are satisfactory.

Failures for the week number in the United States 240 against 205 last year and 29 in Canada against 28 last year. 0 15 to 0 22 0 20 to 0 22 0 22 to 0 23

Concerning Canadian trade the review will Concerning Canadian trade the review wilsay:
Jobbers in staple lines at St. John report a good business but retail trade in groceries is rather quiet. Country produce is freely marketed at good prices. Fire at Sydney destroyed seventy business houses, interrupting trade, but there will be brisk trade in securing new stock. At Halifax retail trade is active. Fall distribution at Montreal is satisfactory and collections up to the average. Business is slightly ahead of last year at Quebec and collections are good. Wholesale trade increases at Toronto. Trade reports from Hamilton are encouraging. Business is healthy at Victoria and prospects improve but collections are only fair.
