The plaintiff company claim that under the authority of a statute in that behalf vide for the railroad, and that it is fair o presume that they had so taken when to presume that they had so taken when the road was laid thirty years ago. Fur-ther they maintained that the fence so effected close to the track was a menace in lie and property, and that they could not operate their road properly on ac-count of it. In the winter time a snow allow could not be used on this portion of the line.

It was argued on behalf of the defendant that the plaintiff had not proved any ownership of the land, that the fence was ownership of the land, that the letter was not obstructing the track, and was in no way more dangerous than any of the ordinary erections close to the track, such as poles, bridge work or water towers. The plaintiff had an adequate remedy at law and therefore the injunction should not be

Liverpool Timber Trade.

For the time of year business all round in the timber trade seems to be in a firm can steady condition. With some few exceptional articles we find there is a good trade in existence, and there is less of the pessimistic tone prevailing in the trade than was the case a week or two ago.

Spruce deals are selling freely at the recent quotations for c. f. f. business, and we hear that for a steamer cargo now about loading with usual options for west coast of England, there are several "Hotspurs" in the field. How many of them will be knocked out remains yet to be seen, as a few days yet remain before the steamer is loaded. We understand the Manchester people are at last awakening to the fact that they have to buy now, and that the policy of holding off any longer is a wrong one.

The demand for pine deals is shady, notwithstanding the high prices. We learn on the one hand that some sellers are doing well with their importations, that their sales are now more than their imports, and they have good inquiries ahead. On the other hand we have some complaining that they find these the hardest goods to sell up the country on account of the high prices.—Timber Trades Journal.

Nell Taylor Fined. On the 4th instant Justice Morrison, On the 4th instant Justice Morrison, Sussex, gave judgment in a case brought by the S. P. C. A. against Cornelius Taylor for lodging shot in a neighbor's cow, which caused the animal great pain and suffering. Dr. Stockton, solicitor, for the society, acted in its behalf and Ora P. King gave Taylor the benefit of an able defence. The magistrate found the defendant guilty of the charges, and fined him $20, to which are to be added $49.50 costs, or in default sixty days' imprisoneosts, or in default sixty days' imprison-
