and after the invasion? The must pa-clude Belgium, as he says—"irrespec-tive of what country they reside in." Now this is absurd. How then does "H. E. B." make out his case? By a peculiar process of what seems to me to be false reasoning. It resembles a trick of the dialectician who aims, not at presenting the truth, but at a sort of sleight-of-hand with words, which will make him to appear to triumph will make him to appear to trimmph over his opponent. It say "re-sembles" c. y for I will give him the benefit of the doubt. It may be simply the faulty reasoning on which so many troublesome errors of wrong ideas, which are the cause of this present signafic conflict, and of the lesser troubles between capital and labor. We must fight wrong ideas before they take the shape of bullets and hayonets.
