

THE STORK VISITS HOLLAND PALACE.

Queen Wilhelmina Gave Birth to a Princess To-day---Dutch Gone Wild With Delight.

QUEEN WILHELMINA AND HUSBAND.

The Hague, April 30.—Queen Wilhelmina gave birth to a daughter this morning. The condition of Her Majesty is most satisfactory; the infant princess is doing well, and Holland is celebrating the happy event from one end of the country to the other with expressions of joy and gratification such as seldom before have been witnessed on the part of this placid people.

Queen on her way to work. The men at first refused to believe the announcement, but they were soon convinced, and the cheers they raised were the signal for the general rejoicings. Flags and bunting that had been held in readiness were unfurled, and the city quickly took on holiday attire.

STILL UNCERTAIN IN KINRADE CASE

Deputy-Attorney-General Cartwright Spent This Morning Searching For Light as to the Proper Procedure.

Inquest Adjourned Until Monday Afternoon---The Crown Officers Confident That Miss Kinrade Will be Secured.

POSITION OF THE KINRADE CASE IN BRIEF

The inquest stands adjourned until 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, when Florence Kinrade, sister of the murdered girl, will be recalled. The decision of the Divisional Court yesterday was not the sweeping victory for the crown that was first supposed. The warrant is not executable outside of Wentworth County.

(Special Despatch to the Times.)

Toronto, April 30.—It is well within the bounds of possibility that the Crown officer's subpoena to be served on Miss Kinrade will be applied for this afternoon, although the Attorney-General's Department has as yet determined on no definite time for the application. It is expected that the Deputy Attorney-General and Mr. George Tate Blackstock will have a conference, which promises to be a lengthy one, this afternoon, when the case will be thoroughly gone over and the time for the application determined on.

(Special Despatch to the Times)

Toronto, April 30.—Deputy Attorney General Cartwright spent this morning at Osgoode Hall looking up authorities on points bearing on the Kinrade case, with a view of deciding upon what is the proper procedure to take.

There is still a good deal of uncertainty as to what will be the next step, but Mr. Cartwright is determined that when it is taken it will be the right one.

The Crown authorities say there can be no doubt as to the final outcome. Florence Kinrade, they say, will unquestionably have to re-appear at Hamilton to be examined on new points. If the matter cannot be arranged before Monday there will be a further adjournment of the inquest, but it is thought here that it will be settled today or to-morrow.

MAY BAR REPORTERS.

The public must wait until Monday afternoon for developments in the Kinrade murder investigation, perhaps longer, for the chances are that the remaining evidence at the inquest will be taken in camera, and newspaper reporters being barred. If this is done much sensational testimony to be given may never be made public unless someone is placed on trial, charged with slaying Ethel Kinrade.

If the Attorney-General's Department enforces an order to hold the balance of the investigation behind closed doors will be done at the request of the Kinrade family lawyers. In his argument before the High Court, George Lynch-Staunton, stated that the girl's reputation was being needlessly injured and it is understood that if he asks for privacy Crown Attorney Washington and George Tate Blackstock, the crown examiner, will acquiesce. The right to exclude the public, including the newspapermen, rests solely with the coroner.

INQUEST ON MONDAY.

Although there was a suspicion, in view of the early reports from Toronto after the judgment had been delivered yesterday, that the crown might spring a surprise last night and examine Florence Kinrade, the session of the coroner's jury lasted less than five minutes. The jurors simply went through the mere formality of adjourning after matters had been explained to them. Half a dozen newspapermen and an ex-lawyer, who comes all the way from Winona, comprised the audience. "For reasons which I need not state," said Crown Attorney Washington, addressing the coroner, "the crown is desirous of having the inquest adjourned until Monday, and if the jury could manage it we would like to meet in the afternoon. We don't want to put the juryman to any loss or inconvenience, but it would accommodate us greatly." "I have spoken to the jurors and they are satisfied to meet at 3 o'clock," said Coroner Anderson, and the ninth session of the jury was over.

JURORS HAVE OPINIONS.

After adjourning the jurors had a talk with Mr. Washington. They said they would like to meet at 3 o'clock and adjourn at 6.30. This would give them an hour and a half for luncheon. They desired to sit then from 8 o'clock until midnight. Mr. Washington promised to make known their wishes to Mr. Blackstock.

The jurors gossiped about different matters before leaving the court. Some of them said they hoped the report was true that their fees were to be increased. "We have spent a lot of time on this case and would be paid something for it," said one of them.

The question that was discussed at the previous session, Mr. Staunton's criticism of the crown, was also mentioned. "I guess the crown can take care of itself," observed one of the jurors, and the others agreed with him. The jurors seemed to be divided on the question of holding the remaining sessions behind closed doors. Several of them are opposed to the proposition, and declare that they do not see how the ends of justice are going to be furthered by holding a secret investigation. It is pointed out that the entire country is in a fever of excitement over this roundly able mystery. Coroner Anderson stated last night that if it was the wish of the Crown he would be quite willing to bar the press from the inquest.

When Crown Attorney Washington was asked as to what means would be taken to enforce Miss Kinrade's attendance, he said that matter rested entirely with the Attorney-General's Department.

RESORT TO OLD LAW.

Undoubtedly the course to be taken is to serve Miss Kinrade with a Crown office subpoena, an old English form by which the Crown can secure the attendance of any witness whose evidence it believes to be essential to the ends of justice. This subpoena, even in the English courts, has seldom been brought (Continued on Page 12.)

FOUND REFUGE IN HAMILTON HARBOR.

Oswego Steamer Had Hard Time on Lake---Pile Driver Sunk in the Bay.

Yesterday's great storm gave Captain Murphy and the crew of the steamer Montague, which is now tied up at the foot of James street, in the slip of the Inland Navigation Company, a run for their lives. The Montague was not due for Hamilton. She belongs on the other side of the line, and is the property of the Downey Coal Company. She left Oswego on Wednesday night, intending to go to Buffalo to take on a cargo. In the gale and blinding snow storm of yesterday she was driven off her course, and Capt. Murphy decided to put into the bay for refuge. He made the canal at the beach at 6.10, but had great difficulty in making the entrance. At one time it looked as if she was doomed to be driven on the south pier. But good seamanship and a steady hand and nerve won the day, and the Montague and her crew spent the night in the bay. They cast anchor pretty well out, and even then their troubles were not over, for only one anchor held, and the vessel tossed and rolled all night. However, the harbor she had made afforded safe shelter, and about 11 o'clock this morning she tied up in the Inland slip. The Maecasa did not attempt to make the return from Toronto yesterday.

There was not enough water in the eastern gap to let her get through. The pile driver used by the Hamilton Ferry Company at the foot of Hughson street, to construct the new dock it is building there for its boats was sunk. The company was making nice progress with the work until the storm arrived. The pile driver was pounded around by the waves all night, and all that remained above water this morning was the cabin.

The violence of the storm at the beach was enormous. Had the water been as high as it was last year, there would have been no estimating the damage. Capt. Lundy had a very narrow escape when he went out to light the lamps in the lighthouse. He was nearly washed off the pier. It took the combined efforts of Arthur Brown and another man, with a line, and the help of the wire line on the pier, to get him safely through the job. The new men on the Radial bridge had a terrible time of it, but managed their work all right. One of the abutments of the Grand Trunk Railway swing bridge at the Canal was washed away. The lake is very rough again to-day, but is gradually abating.

WIFE HAD NO RIGHT IN HER OWN HOUSE.

Police Magistrate Expresses His Views In Connection With Luxford's Domestic Troubles.

"A man's house is his castle." To illustrate this legal adage, Magistrate Jells at the Police Court this morning ruled that a man can put his better half out of the house and keep her out if he wants to, and it is illegal for her to try and force her way in again. The recourse she must take is through the civil courts and not the Police Court. If she tries to force herself in and gets injured while doing so she can bring no charge of assault.

Mr. and Mrs. Luxford, 36 Imperial street, were married one year ago last October, and for a few months not a ripple disturbed the tranquil surface of the matrimonial sea. But this condition of things was not destined to be of very long duration. The stork visited the family, and Mrs. Luxford went to stay with a friend, Mrs. Colbourne, during the time of maternity. Shortly after this, according to the story told the Magistrate, the male member of the little family demanded that his spouse should avoid the Colbournes. Mrs. Luxford had a mind of her own, and decided to follow the dictates of her own sweet will in picking her friends. Hubby remonstrated, but in vain. Mrs. Luxford went to the home of Mrs. Colbourne a week ago last Friday. The husband had to cook his own meals, make his own bed, and do other things not in accord with his dignity as a member of the stronger sex. During the day, while he was at work, Mrs. Luxford would return to the house, and leave again at night before he would return. Hubby got wise to these visitations and decided to change the locks on his house. Mrs. Luxford noticed this preparation, and acting on the advice of her counsel, whom she had consulted previously, went over to the house and tried to force an entrance. A struggle ensued, in which the husband came off second best, and she was successful in getting inside. Neighbors telephoned the police that a man was killing his wife on Imperial street, and advised them to get down there and interfere. Two policemen were sent down, but everything was quietness when they arrived. Mrs. Luxford went to the Magistrate and wanted him to make out a warrant for her husband's arrest, but not being able to get any satisfactory reason why she should be apprehended, the Magistrate refused to do so, but made out a summons charging Luxford with assault.

Mrs. Luxford took the stand first, and from her testimony it was gathered that when she tried to enter the house on Tuesday afternoon her husband met her at the door and blocked her way. She insisted on getting in, and he struck her, she said. A struggle ensued in which she said he choked her, kicked her, and otherwise abused her. "Why did you leave him?" asked the Magistrate.

"I was afraid to stay there. He was always threatening me and abusing me, and one day he told me that if I didn't stay out of the house he would kick me out."

Mr. J. Scheller, counsel for the defendant, then asked the witness a few questions. He asked her if her husband did not warn her against visiting Mrs. Colbourne, and told her that trouble would come of it if she did not obey him in this respect. She replied that her husband had intimated on one or two occasions that he would rather she did not go over to Mrs. Colbourne, but that was all.

"Did you prepare any meals for him?" enquired Mr. Scheller. "No, I didn't," replied Mrs. Luxford, very sharply. Mrs. Vickers, a neighbor who saw most of the fight, said it was something shameful. "Did you see it all?" queried the court. (Continued on Page 3.)

TO STRIKE FOR ONE DAY ONLY.

French Labor Men to Quit Work To-morrow—May Day.

They Wish to Show Their Power and Solidarity.

The Government Taking No Chances Prepare For Trouble.

Paris, April 30.—To-morrow is May Day, the day on which the National Federation of Labor Unions has urged laborers throughout the country to join in a one-day's strike in demonstration of the strength of organized labor and of its protest against present conditions. The police have issued an order prohibiting all parades in Paris to-morrow, and much uneasiness has manifested itself in the city regarding the possibilities of the day.

The leaders of the syndicate movement disclaim any intention to inaugurate a revolution on May Day, declaring that it will be devoted solely to a demonstration of the solidarity of labor. They assert that the cessation of work will be general, but that trouble could arise only from irresponsible hot-heads, and that everybody will return to work the next day. Nevertheless the Government is known to have taken measures to concentrate many thousands of troops in the city, and has scattered ships with wireless apparatus to every important port in France, where they will maintain communication with the Eiffel tower wireless operators belonging to the navy, who can be depended on. Correspondents of all the Paris newspapers have arranged automobile service to Boulogne and Havre in case travel by ordinary methods is cut off. To-day a number of English and American residents left for the country. They disclaim fear, but think the occasion a good one for a week-end elsewhere. The Government is training 400 military engineers at Versailles and more elsewhere for the operation of electric lighting machinery to take the place of possible strikers.

A CALL.

Chalmers and Barton Want F. W. K. Harris, Knox College.

At a meeting of the two Presbyterian congregations on the mountain, Chalmers and Barton Presbyterian, it was decided to extend a call to F. W. K. Harris, of Knox College, to become pastor of the combined charge. Mr. Harris graduates this year, and will then be ready for service. He has recently preached twice in the mountain churches, and made such a favorable impression that the call to him was unanimous.

The matter will come before the Presbytery of Hamilton at its next meeting. REV. N. LECKIE.

Hamilton Young Man Called to Kirkwall Church.

Rev. Neil M. Leckie, B. A., B. D., son of Mr. W. R. Leckie, City Treasurer, formerly assistant pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, this city, and now pastor of Burns and Loundesboro, has been called to Beverly Presbyterian Church, Kirkwall. Mr. Leckie, when on a visit to his old home here some time ago, was asked to preach in the Kirkwall church, and accepted. He made such a fine impression there that the call was the outcome. It will be signed in the usual way and forwarded without delay.

THE MAN IN OVERALLS

A jumping off place called Rivers, in Manitoba, with a population of 750, has issued an illustrated pamphlet with a view to booming the place. A little of this Western spirit and hustle wouldn't be a bad thing to inoculate Hamilton with at this present crisis.

If the peach crop is still alive, it is not easily killed. It looks as if May Day will pass in Hamilton with almost everything running along smoothly in Labor circles. But I wish all the moulders were back to work.

We may yet have to establish an Interpretation Court to interpret the verdicts of the High Court Judges.

Better lock your boys in the back yard along with the dog. They will be arrested if they play ball in the street.

Here is a man fined for having his back yard in a mess. Now, what about the alleyways? Nobody responsible?

Hon. Mr. Foster can sympathize with Lloyd-George and his deficit. But Lloyd came honestly by his. The old-age pensions must have made a big hole in his receipts.

The Maecasa is no fair weather boat. Fair or foul is all the same to her.

If the School Board swallows the Art School and abolishes the life classes, the students will have to go to New or Paris for the tuition they might have got here.

Wake me early, wake me early, mother dear, for I'm to be Queen of the May. Abdul Hamid may yet have his wisecrack in washing for a living. They could copy their trade on the banks of the Bosphorus. The School Board will take over the Art School, with the exception of the life class. There is too much of the altogether about it for some of the trustees. There will be no objection, I suppose, to the still life class.

Yesterday's weather knocked out the oldest inhabitant. He couldn't go far enough back to match yesterday.

If we got nothing else, we got quite a lot of legal lore and opinions and not a little amusement out of Mr. Staunton's kick at the coroner's warrant. Who will say that his move was unwarranted?

This Indian list question might also be referred to the Divisional Court. Mr. Sturdy should have a legal advisor.

To-morrow is moving day. Have you got a horse? I know a man who moved yesterday afternoon. It was an awful day to move, but perhaps he thought after all that it was cheaper to move than to pay rent.

Don't knock Mr. Hoodless; boost. If there is anything the Times is not doing that it might or could do to help along the city and the greater Hamilton movement it would like to know it. What does Mr. Hoodless want us to do?

Three cheers for the Sodales, the Marathon orators, not forgetting a tiger for the defeated.

Now if somebody would give $5,000 to help keep the Art School on its legs.

Death Sentence

London, April 30.—A local news agency to-day publishes a despatch from Saloniki, European Turkey, saying it has been officially announced there that Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey, is to be tried before a constitutional court martial and that it is generally believed that sentence of death will be passed on him.

AN INCREASE IN RECEIPTS.

Street Railway Returns Better Than Same Quarter Last Year.

Although the street railway receipts for the first quarter of this year show an increase over the corresponding period in 1908, there is a decrease as compared with the last quarter of last year. The city treasurer to-day received a cheque for $7,139.87. This is made up of 8 per cent. on receipts of $2,511.66 from passengers outside the city, amounting to $200.92, 8 per cent. on receipts of $65,748.91 from passengers within the city limits, amounting to $5,259.91, and mileage, $1,876.96. The total receipts from January 1 to March 31, 1908, were $64,281.58. For the first quarter this year they amounted to $68,290.47. For the previous quarter, the last three months of last year, the total receipts were $76,810.78. The receipts from passengers within the city limits for the first quarter of 1908 were $62,137; for the last quarter $73,839, and for the first quarter of this year $65,748.91. The receipts from outside passengers for the first quarter of 1908 were $2,143; for the last quarter, $2,971, and for the first quarter of this year $2,511.66.

BODY FOUND.

The Remains of Farmer Jerry Clark Badly Mutilated.

(Special Despatch to the Times.) Belleville, Ont., April 30.—Late last evening the body of Jerry Clark, who with his wife, went through the county bridge over Black Creek, on Monday last, with a team of horses, was found about half a mile below the bridge. The remains were badly mutilated. The body of Mr. Clark has not yet been recovered, and fears are entertained that it was carried out into the Moira river, and into the Bay of Quinte. Coroner Harper, of Madoc, has ordered an inquest to be held on Wednesday.

London Storm

(Special Despatch to the Times.) London, Ont., April 30.—For more than three hours early this morning a terrific storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning and drenching rain, swept over this city, and as a result telegraph, telephone and electric wires are down throughout the city and country. By the electric wires breaking electric lights went out at the Victoria Hospital, and before candles and lamps could be obtained two deaths and one birth had occurred. Heavy rain falling on a foot of snow is causing the river to rise rapidly. Fruit and other trees all over the district are badly damaged.

LOOKS LIKE ELOPEMENT.

The local police have had a case placed in their hands that looks like an elopement. They have been notified that on Tuesday night last, after a family residing on Garth street south had retired, the mother went into the room of a 17-year-old daughter, and found that the bed had not been slept in. Tracks were found leading from the front window, and it is believed that she made her escape that way. The parents believe she has gone away and been married. In the Toronto liquor license reduction case of Brewer vs. the City of Toronto, leave to appeal was refused yesterday. Mr. A. M. Lewis, of this city, represented Brewer in the case.

ARE SAFE.

Missionaries and Mission in Adana and Hadjin All Right.

Russian Relief Force at Tabriz and Succor People.

Boston, April 30.—A cable announcing that order had been restored in Hadjin and Adana, in Asia Minor, was received from Rev. W. W. Peet, treasurer of the American Board of Commissioners for foreign missions in Constantinople, at the American board's headquarters in this city to-day.

The cablegram lifted a great weight of anxiety from the shoulders of the board officials, inasmuch as the situation in Adana and Hadjin had been considered most perilous for the past two weeks.

According to the despatch all the missionaries and the missions are safe. FOOD FOR STARVING.

Tabriz, Persia, April 30.—The advance guard of the Russian expedition under Gen. Sarsky that left Julfa, on the frontier, a few days ago to relieve this beleaguered city, entered the gates this morning. It brought supplies for the starving people. Its progress was contested, but not seriously.
