A Cornwall paper tells a laughable story of horse-jockeying. A farmer at Constantine had a mare whose good qualities were so few that he determined to sell her; be did so, but wis not able to purchase a substitute at that market. A few weeks after he was more fortunate; purchasing an animal that seamed to be all he could wish, and for which he paid much more than he sold the worthless mare for. But, also I when ho got his bargain home, his abarp-eyed wife discovered that he had merely purchased the o'd steed, the horse-dea'ers having very cleverly disguised it.

There is not a physician in the counties of Breathit, Perry and Letcher, Kentacky. A doctor once made an attempt to establish imself in one of them, but was surved to death the first day.
