

Household Hints.

When putting away summer stockings see that they are clean and whole; it is a great comfort to find them ready for use in the spring.

Very few costumes of plain black silk are to be found this season among the imported costumes. Brocades, velvets, satins and plumes seem to have crowded this elegant material out of use.

STUFFED CABBAGE.—Select a fine, large cabbage, strip the outer leaves off, cut off the stalk, scoop out the heart, and fill with mince, bread crumbs, onion, and seasoning. Tie in a cloth, and boil for one hour.

RICH CRAB CAKE.—Into twelve ounces of flour rub one large spoonful of butter, add three eggs, with as much milk as will make the dough the consistency of paste. Roll it out thin. Make into cakes, and bake them on a griddle.

APPLES DUMPLINGS.—Two pounds apples, four eggs, one teaspoon milk, a little sugar, a few drops of lemon, two ounces butter, and some bread crumbs. Mince the apples and mix with the other ingredients, form balls, and boil in hot water slightly salted. Serve with wine or fruit sauce.

BEVERLY.—A beefsteak chopped up fine, and baked with flour and yeast in the form of a meat bread-loaf, is the latest dietetic sensation. It is asserted that most thus treated entirely disappears during the process of baking, the nutritive principles becoming incorporated with the bread.

BLACK CURRANT CAKES FOR A COLD.—Boil one quart of juice for half an hour, then take it off and stir a quarter of a pound of sifted loaf sugar into it; when melted, pour it into dishes about half an inch thick, put it out in the sun to dry; and when perfectly cold, cut it into small discs or diamonds.

SODA WATER.—Dissolve one ounce of carbonate of soda in one gallon of water; put it into bottles, in the quantity of a tumbler-full or half a pint to each; having the cork ready, drop into each bottle half a drachm of tartaric acid or crystals, cork and wire it immediately, and it will be ready to use at any time.

DRIPPING.—To form a good substitute for butter, in making pastry, the meat must be roasted with water in the pan to prevent the fat from burning; when the meat is cooked pour the dripping in a basin, and let it stand till cold, pouring off the gravy at the bottom, then place the dripping in an oven to melt, and the next day it will be quite fit for use, and will make excellent short pastry.

An Ancestor's Humor.

The late Emperor Nicholas happened one day to be engaged inspecting a State penitentiary in one of the provincial seats of government, and took it into his head to question some of the convicts respecting the nature of the offences for which they were suffering punishment. "What are you here for?" he asked of one.

"I am innocent, Imperial Majesty," replied the prisoner, falling on his knees; "a victim of false witness! a church was robbed—a beadle knocked on the head—the peasants caught hold of me, and I knew nothing about it."

Similar replies were given by other prisoners. The Emperor, obviously bored by these successive protestations of guiltlessness, cast a glance along the line of prisoners until his eye fell upon a ragged, wretched-looking gypsy, whom he beckoned forward with the words: "Of course you, too, are here on a false charge?"

"Not a bit of it, your majesty," replied the gypsy; "it's all fair and square as far as I am concerned, I stole a pony from a tradesman."

"Stole a pony, did you?" said the Czar, with a laugh; and then, addressing the governor of the prison with well assumed sternness:—"Turn that good-for-nothing rascal instantly out of doors. I cannot allow him to remain a minute longer in such good company, lest he corrupt all these good, innocent people."

The Political Outlook.

My belief is, if the country had an opportunity of speaking, it would as a whole re-echo the verdict of Northumberland. (Applause.) What may be to say two years hence, with our elective system of representation, depends very largely upon you and those like you; depends very largely in the meantime upon how you shall do your duty in educating, and organizing the people all over the country. I believe if that duty is, as I have no doubt it will be, discharged, we shall win in 1883. Now, as I have said, we fight against odds. The Government has placed the Government has influence of various kinds and organizations of various kinds at its command, while we have nothing but the strength of our principles and the disciplined ardor of our volunteers. Sacrifice of time must be made, some toil must be undergone. We will do our part. I am ready, my friends in Parliament are ready, to do their part. (Applause.) But we are but a handful. There are many leading and representative men of the Liberal party out of Parliament to-day. There are many fit for Parliament—more than we can hope to find seats for. Let them do their work outside. Let them do their work in the contingencies; let them undertake the task of educating public opinion—and thus shall we win. I hope they will enlist the young men to whom I have referred, and in future days many a young recruit of this time will recount with pride and joy the toils and struggles, and I believe, also, the triumphs, of '83.—(Hon. E. Blake.)

The report that Sullivan wrote to Parnell declining to acknowledge his authority is denied. It is stated that the discussion among home rulers are exaggerated.

It is remarkable what little bites a woman takes when eating in the presence of her sweetheart. What a little mouth she has then! She nibbles with her little white teeth like some dainty squirrel eating a hickory nut. But wait till wash day comes. Watch her when she goes to hang up clothes and gets in a hurry. By the time that she gets the big ends of fifteen clothes pins hid in that mouth you will begin to think that it is a pretty good-sized, hearty mouth after all.

Make an Organization.

I am glad to be able to announce what is known to most of you, that there are indications from many quarters of a favorable turn, and that the efforts which have been made and are making towards the organization of the party in the various Provinces of the Dominion are proceeding most successfully. The signs of revival and of encouragement reach me from every side, and I hope within a very few months to see all our various local organizations at work. I hope to see those who are active more active still, those who have been lax revive, and new organizations created where there were none before. (Cheers.) There is much to be done, and this time in which to do it; and this immediately and pressing duty devolves upon all our friends throughout the Province and the Dominion. If this is done I believe we may be able to say by the close of this season that the Liberal party is ready for the fight. Organization is essential. There are many balanced constituencies in which the question of victory or defeat, and where the attention to the lists of registered voters means victory or defeat. All these things have to be attended to in the coming season. They have to be attended to this year and next year, in order that we may feel our ground prepared for the struggle which is to come in the following year. Zeal and enthusiasm are good things, and are quite essential, but I believe our friends who have answered for the Army and the Volunteers will tell you that the army will generally beat the mob, and we must not trust to zeal and enthusiasm without discipline. Nothing could be more cheering than the result of my visit to Montreal. In that Province, in which it was said we had hardly a friend, I found numbers of zealous, enthusiastic friends, recognizing the difficulties of their position, but not discouraged by them. I found them actively engaged in the work of reorganization, and determined to make that fight which those who are determined generally win in the end. I found old standbys mixed with young men and ardent recruits, all engaged with equal zeal in considering the prospects and actively working to improve the prospects of the party. (Cheers.)

Tea Two Hundred Years Ago.

While investigating the history of tea an English writer came across a rare manuscript in the British Museum, giving, as below, a quaint summary of the virtues of "the herb called tea or chee."

1. It purifies the Blood that which is gross and heavy.
2. It vanquisheth heavy Dreames.
3. It easeth the brain of heavy Damps.
4. Easeth and cureth giddiness and paines in the head.
5. Prevents the dropsie.
6. Dreth moist humors in the head.
7. Consumes Rawnesse.
8. Opens Obstructions.
9. Clears the Sight.
10. Cleanseth and Purifieth Adust humors and hot liver.
11. Purifieth defects of the bladder and kidneys.
12. Vanquisheth superfluous sleep.
13. Drives away dizziness, makes one nimble and valiant.
14. Encourages the heart and drives away feare.
15. Drives away all paines of the Collic which proceed from wind.
16. Strengthens the inward parts and prevents consumptions.
17. Strengthens the memory.
18. Sharpens the will and quickens the Understanding.
19. Purgeth safely the gaul.

Mr. James Gordon Bennett, it is announced by The Whitehall Review, is engaged to marry the daughter of the Prince de Furstenberg.

Mr. Burr-Plumb, having been unsuccessful in his mission to Albany anent the Niagara Falls Park, now announces that he did not go to Albany on that business at all.

Management of a Small Creamery.

The management of a small creamery differs in no respect from that of a well-appointed private dairy. The only respect in which a creamery is different from a dairy is that it does the work of several dairies, and in doing this work it greatly reduces the cost of making the butter. If we follow up the season's work of a small creamery, of let us say 200 cows, we shall find that one person with the partial help of another, will be able to do all the work for this number of cows, which would probably be otherwise done in twenty separate dairies. The economy is obvious. In place of twenty sets of pans, the use of twenty milk-rooms, twenty churns, and twenty pairs of hands in cleansing milk-pans and other utensils, there is but one, and the labor and time of nineteen or eighteen persons are saved. Besides, the product is all alike, of even quality, packed similarly, and marketed through one agent; so that all through the work there is saving of labor and economy of expense. This, of course, reduces the cost of making the butter to the least possible amount, and at the same time raises the income to the highest possible point. Instead of all the butter from these twenty small dairies being sold at a village grocery, and put up in the old-fashioned rolls, and being disposed of in trade, as was formerly the custom, at a very low price, the aggregate product is sent off at short intervals, and while fresh, in refrigerator cars, and along with the product of other creameries packed in a similar manner in the same kind of packages, and reaches the market in such a condition as to realize the highest price. This is an advantage which is equal in value to the saving of the cost, so that the patron of a creamery enjoys the double benefit of the lessened cost and the increased value. If dairymen lived before, it is not surprising that they can make money now, under these considerable advantages.—[N. Y. Times.]

A Cheerful Word.

Did you ever go out in the morning with a heart so depressed and saddened that a pall seemed spread over all the world? But on meeting some friend who spoke cheerfully for a minute or two, if only upon different matters, you have felt yourself wonderfully lightened. Every child dropping into your house on an errand has brought in a ray of sunshine which did not depart when he went his way again. It is a blessed thing to speak a cheerful word when you can. "The heart knoweth its own bitterness" the world over, and good words to such hearts "are like apples of gold in pictures of silver." Even strangers we meet casually by the way, in the travellers' waiting room, are unconsciously influenced by the tone we use. It is the one with pleasant words on his lips to whom strangers in strange lands apply for advice and direction in their perplexities. Take it as a compliment if some wayfarer comes to you to direct him which street or which train to take; your manner has struck him as belonging to one he can trust. It is hard sometimes to speak a pleasant word when the shadows rest on your hearts; but nothing will tend more to lighten your spirit.

POISONED BY EATING WILD PARSNIES.—Waterloo, May 6.—This afternoon while two sons of Henry Ferdinand, tanner, of this town, were working in the field they ate some wild parsnips. One of them, aged 12 years, dropped down and died in about ten minutes. The other, aged about 15, also went into convulsions.

We believe it is true that the governor-general, on behalf of her majesty the queen, has offered the dignity of knighthood to the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie; we believe it is also true that Mr. Mackenzie has had the courage and good sense to decline it. This is the third or fourth time the same offer has come; but the sturdy old Liberal prefers plain Mr. Mackenzie to high sounding Sir Alexander.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balm is the most safe, pleasant and perfect remedy known for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. It cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all Pectoral Complaints, in the most speedy manner. A few doses will relieve the most troublesome cough in children or adults. For sale by all dealers, at 25 cents per bottle.

Newspaper Laws.

We call the special attention of postmasters and subscribers to the following synopsis of the newspaper laws:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning a paper, does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post-office, whether directed to his name or not, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post-office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

4. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
