Well-Built City with a Large and Het erogeneous Population — How the

We have taken the patient reader a bec. It is the principal seaport, has a population of about 800,000 cf many colors and creeds, and is a live b s ling city. The fact of its lying c'oser to Europe, and particularly England, makes Europe, and particularly England, makes apport; then its rail it the first great seaport; then its rail way communication with Calcutta makes it the entrepot for all mails and light merchandise, thus, in a manner, cutting merchandise, thus, in a manner, cutting off a certain amount of the shipping trade between Europe and that city. Its harbor cannot be surpassed in the world. The English quarter of the city is well asid out and the main streets are traversed by a first class street car line.

Mrs Thomas Acres, of Huntley, Ont., was for ten years a sufferer from liver complaint, which doctors' medicine did not relieve. After using four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters she was entirely cured, and states, that she is like a new woman again.

is built on an island of the same name with an area of about twenty square miles, and from an elevation a pleasant pano rama of island, sea and mountain may be seen. The hotels and principal com New York. This place shows more variety of religious denominations than any other Indian city visited by us. Here are Hindoos in holy proximity to Buddhists; Parsees, who worship the sun as the fountain of all light and good, rubbing shoulders with the crafty Mohammedans; Protestants, Jews and Roman Catholics all, while trading for English gloths, sugar, indigo, Benares English cloths, sugar, indigo, Benares brocades, leather, drugs, gold-lace, silks, carpets, cotton, and bullion, have laid aside creed and color, and are struggling together for the best of the bargain.

THE PARSEES have long monopolized the financial business of Bombay; they are the Jews or money-lenders of the city, and some of them are second editions of the Roths-childs in wealth. Sir Jamsetjee Jee jeebhoy, a great merchant who was knighted by Queen Victoria about forty years ago, was one of the most remark-able of the Bombay Parsees. He began by buying and selling empty bottles and died worth several millions. His grand direct from Heaven by Zoroaster, approachable only by the high priests with faces veiled. They consider this fire the faces veiled. They consider this are the symbol of the "eternal light," which must ultimately burn up the dross of the universe. A Mohammedan will not drink wine, a Jew refuses awine's flesh, drink wine, a Jew refuses swine's flesh, and a Parsee as religiously abstains from the use of tobacco, simply because it would be sacrilege to put fire to such a base use. It is a common thing to see, while strolling through the parks or along the seashore, these people on their knees, with their faces towards the sun your lungs cannot half of there work. offering up prayers to the great fountain of light. Unlike the Hindoos, they do not burn their dead, but have a custom much more objectionable. On Malabar

Hill is THE "TOWER OF SILENCE," surrounded by high thick walls within which are walks, seats and a number of very lofty round stone towers covered over with iron gratings. Upon these the dead are placed, and over and about them hover flocks of scavenger flesheating birds, ever waiting to devour the flesh from the body as soon as placed on the tower roof. No persons are allowed. the tower roof. No persons are allowed within the walls but the particular caste within the walls but the particular caste who are employed as officials or bearers of the dead, and the priests. When the body has returned to the elements or been devoured by the birds the bones slide into the sepulchral vaults beneath, and we predict when the last trump shall be total by Gabriel, there will be a and we predict when the last trump shall be tooted by Gabriel, there will be a mighty scramble and fuss to get them selves properly shook together again. Fancy the amount of scripture that will be misquoted when Kerbelah Mushed has found he has unwittingly put on Abdel Mazda's tibia, worked himself into Organzal Aburg's alargie, at the con-Abdel Mazda's thota, worked minsel it to Ormuzd Ahura's clavicle, stuck on Zara Thustra's meta carpus, or found the right patella smaller than the left or the right os calcis sticking out farther behind than or calcis sticking out farther pening in the state of the calcis sticking out farther behind than the left. The Farsees were originally the left. The Farsees were originally Persians, and they still retain their Oriental robe-shaped apparel and the Persian's love for rich jewels and costly display. Their complexion is much fairer than the Hindoos or Mohammedans, and than the Hindoos or Monaminedais, and thay look upon these latter with no common hatred. They consider themselves the chosen of God, they are clannish and do not intermarry with other nations, and they tenaciously retain most of the customs of their ancestors. From the 'Esplanade' hotel, on a steamy morning, aix miles from the city, out in the bay.

After a delightful passage of an hour and a half among islands and around points, a half among islands and arcund points, we landed on a long pier. A stone stairway of several hundred steps conducted us to the celebrated caves. These ducted marvels of caveras were originally Buddhist temples. The gods Brahma, Siva, Vishnu and a host of others were carved from the solid rock in others were carved from the solid rock in mammoth figures twenty-five feet in height. The caves are in several compartments, each being nearly one hundred feet square, and having on the walls exculsitaly carved festival scenes, war your druggest or address
