LIMA, Peru, Jan. 27.
The Union, in an alarming editorial declares that war between Peru and Bolivia, is inevitable. This conclusion is drawn from Bolivia's recent warlike preparations, and an expression of General Ismael Montes, Bolivia's Ambassador, and other Bolivian officers in Paris. Bolivia's ambition is said to be a port on the Pacific.

LONDON, Jan. 28.
England is on the brink of another campaign by suffragettes, in comparison with which former outbreaks will appear insignificant. To-night 2,000 policemen are engaged dispersing crowds from around the Parliament buildings. Shopkeepers are kept very busy barring up their show windows, and excited women are making incendiary speeches in several halls. The women believe the politicians played carefully a studied trick upon them, and the decision of the Government to drop the Bill will likely lead to serious consequences.

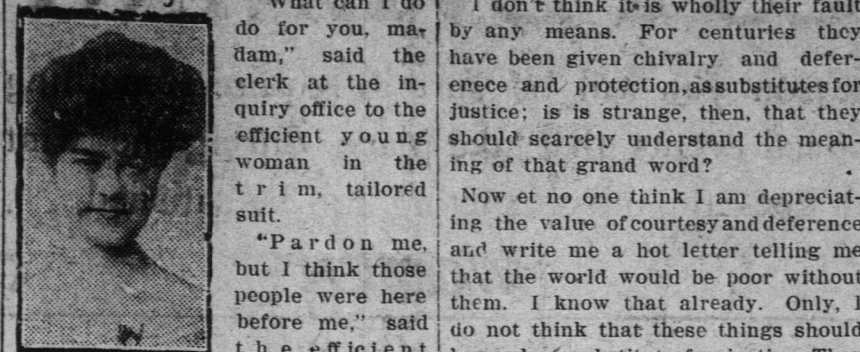

LONDON, Jan. 27.
The Cabinet to-day decided to drop the Franchise Bill in deference to the Speaker's ruling that the form and substance of the measure would be so materially altered, if the amendment granting the vote to women were adopted, that it ought to be presented in the shape of a new Bill. The precincts of the Commons presented many curious features this afternoon. Mounted and foot police were to be seen everywhere in great strength. Two thousand patrol men and 300 mounted men were actually on duty, while large forces were in hiding in convenient courtyards near the Parliament building ready to prevent breaches of the peace. Leave to all other Metropolitan policemen had been stopped.

A GOOD BREAKFAST.
Some Persons Never Know What it Means.

A good breakfast, a good appetite and good digestion mean everything to the man, woman or child who has anything to do, and wants to get a good start toward doing it.
A Southern man tells of his wife's "good breakfast" and also supper, made out of Grape-Nuts and cream. He says:
"I should like to tell you how much good Grape-Nuts has done my wife. After being in poor health for the last 18 years, during part of the time scarcely anything would stay on her stomach long enough to nourish her, finally at the suggestion of a friend she tried Grape-Nuts.
"Now, after about four weeks on this delicious and nutritious food, she has picked up most wonderfully and seems as well as anyone can be.
"Every morning she makes a good breakfast on Grape-Nuts eaten just as it comes from the package with cream or milk added; and then again the same at supper, and the change in her is wonderful.
"We can't speak too highly of Grape-Nuts as a food after our remarkable experience." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.—Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."
Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WOMEN AND JUSTICE.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"What can I do for you, ma'am," said the clerk at the inquiry office to the efficient young woman in the trim, tailored suit.
"Pardon me, but I think those people were here before me," said the efficient young woman, indicating a man and a woman who had been waiting longer than she.
The clerk at the inquiry office attended to the wants of the two people indicated, after which he came back to the efficient young woman and answered two or three quick, efficient questions for her. As she walked briskly away, after a pleasant "thank you," he peered after her with an expression of great interest on his face. "Well," I heard him say, "that's the first time I ever saw a woman do that. I've seen 'em rush in here, squeeze in ahead of people who have been waiting ten minutes, and interrupt anyone who was trying to talk to me. But that's the first time I ever saw a woman insist on waiting until her turn. Yes, there really must be something in this new woman business after all, if she's a sample."
Don't you hope she is a sample of what women are going to be some day soon?
I do.
For it seems to me that the quality which women lack the most conspicuously is just this same sense of justice, this habit of playing fair, which that woman displayed.

I don't think it is wholly their fault by any means. For centuries they have been given chivalry and deference and protection, as substitutes for justice; is it strange, then, that they should scarcely understand the meaning of that grand word?
Now not one thinks I am depreciating the value of courtesy and deference and write me a hot letter telling me that the world would be poor without them. I know that already. Only, I do not think that these things should be made a substitute for justice. They are splendid in addition to justice, but not in place of it. Just as a cake and ice cream are an excellent complement to solid food, but we do not want them in place of bread and meat.
It is such a queer notion that courtesy and justice are necessarily exclusive of each other. One of the weirdest arguments of the anti-suffragists is that men will no longer give women their seats in the cars when women vote. How absurd! On that basis men should not give up their seats to members of their own sex who are not able to stand by reason of old age or infirmity; but I notice they do.
To return to the main road.—if women are really going to succeed in the business and professional world, they will need a stronger sense of justice than they now have. They must learn to demand justice for themselves and to show it to others. They must learn not to crowd ahead of others in the waiting line, even if they get a good chance, and they must learn to appreciate the bigger principles of justice on which such little deceptions rest.

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body * * * * *." He continues, "so we may be said to live (through) the stomach." He goes on to show that the stomach is the vital center of the body. For weak stomachs and the consequent indigestion or dyspepsia, and the multitude of various diseases which result therefrom, no medicine can be better suited as a curative agent than
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
"Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breast-bone," writes Miss G. M. MURKIN, of Corona, Calif. "I had suffered from it, off and on, for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally, I was told it was my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. Whenever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint—it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grow strong fast. Today I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

Fashions and Fads.

Stoles of fur are very large, of showy proportions; muffs vary in size.
The brocades showing metal threads in the weave and of gauzy texture have the preference.
Drapery should always be first pinned, then arranged and changed until the right line is obtained.
The newest shoes are of patent leather, with brocade or plain silk tops which match the costume.
Tiny wings of the valkyrie style are also used, being fastened over the brow to a band of black velvet.
Trimming should only be used to bring out the beauty of a fabric, never to attract attention to itself.
The tailless ermine mantle with collar and cuffs of a dark fur is especially popular in the high-priced models.
Sheerness in the top of the bodice is noticed in all the new dresses. This is particularly true of evening dresses.
Foulards with plain backgrounds and a decided design will be used for street frocks when coats are discarded.
Ornaments of feathers of all kinds of dics, brushes and "fantasies" are placed where a spot of color is needed.
The newest motoring cap is the courier-du-boys, made of white felt, shaped into a close-fitting brim that frames the face.
Agrettes can be placed anywhere. A small cluster can be adjusted in the front with a sweeping line toward the back.
The Russian blouse frock, with the upper part of velvet, and the skirt of broadcloth are particularly smart for young girls.
Very beautiful are the gowns made entirely of gold cloth with a woven design or tracery on the ground work of the tissue.
The debutantes are wearing colored skirts with double and triple flounces of lace with long pannier draperies of colored satin.
The paradise plumes are being used very much with the newest coiffure, being fastened to the hair with a gorgeous jewel or ornament.
The almost universal use of artificial flowers for evening gowns adds a touch of color to a white gown or a chic touch to a gown of color.
Sumptuous fur trimmed velvet suits are much worn. A striking combination is black and white striped velvet trimmed with tailless ermine.
Fashionable are the small derby-shaped hats of pressed beaver, trimmed with a narrow band of ostrich at the base of the crown and dotted at intervals with tiny pink roses.

Weddings.

By H. L. RANX.

A wedding is a solemn, high-priced function which is pulled off at the expense of the bride's father, who is not consulted about anything except the bills. After a stern, rock-bound parent with several marriageable daughters has been led up to an itemized bill covering six voluptuous weddings, including hack hire and overhead expense, he will not have breath enough left to sing the long meter doxology.
As generally understood, weddings are supposed to be the climax to a courtship. At times, however, they prove to be an anti-climax, in which even the brides father has to ante again for the attorney fees. There is nothing nicer than a wedding which is so arranged that the contracting parties remain on speaking terms down to the last lap. If more people would pick out weddings of this kind the divorce docket would look like a subscription paper for the benefit of good roads.
There are two kinds of weddings—church and home. There is also the justice of the peace variety, which will sew a reluctant groom up as tight as any other, but at less expense. The church wedding is never used except by people who are either in society and trying to secure a better grip or by those who are candidates for the first degree. It is a painful scene, especially when the groom finds that he has left the ring in his other pants or the best man runs one foot through the bridesmaid's train, and is performed to pipe organ accompaniment at so much per running foot.
The home wedding can be enjoyed at slight trouble and expense, as all that is necessary is to put up the curtains in the front parlor and dust off the wax floral wreath. The guests at this kind of a wedding are able to get a good view of the groom at close range and note whether he has removed the price tags from his new suit. They can also tell whether the bride is trimmed in real lace or an imitation of shredded excelsior. The home wedding turns out a very durable knot and assays a small percentage of family jars, hence it has come to stay.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Health—Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sensitive Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.
"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.
"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine."
