On Expecting Thanks.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"When you receive a favor remember it. When you bestow one forget it." Some weeks ago the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow, warmly, "and I hadn't even thought of it until you spoke. I know she was pleased and I'm glad, and I know how busy she is and how hard it is for her to get out, especially when the children are sick, and what an undertaking it is for her to write a formal letter, and I don't care if she never thanks me."

The sort," said the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow, warmly, "and I hadn't even thought of it until you spoke. I know she was pleased and I'm glad, and I know how busy she is and how hard it is for her to get out, especially when the children are sick, and what an undertaking it is for her to write a formal letter, and I don't care if she never thanks me."

I admired the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow for remembering to send flowers to her washerwoman. I admire her still more for being big enough not to insist on being formally thanked.

The real generosity is too busy giving, and giving again, to keep tabs on all its recipients and make sure they are duly grateful.

Don't taint your generosity by exacting thanks.

NO ONE STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The celebrated Dr. Abernethy of London was firmly of the opinion that disorders of the stomach were the most prolific source of human ailments in general. A recent medical writer says: "every feeling, emotion and affection reports at the stomach (through the system of nerves) and the stomach is affected accordingly. It is the vital center of the body."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. "Several months ago I suffered from a severe pain right under the breastbone," writes Mrs. G. M. MURPHY, of Corona, Calif. "Had suffered from it, off and on, for several years. I also suffered from heart-burn, did not know what was the matter with me. I tried several medicines but they did me no good. Finally, I was told it was my liver. I did not dare to eat as it made me worse. When ever I swallowed anything it seemed that I would faint-it hurt so. I grew very thin and weak from not eating. Was told to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took five bottles of it, and could feel myself getting better from the first dose. I could eat a little without pain and grow strong fast. Today I am strong and well and can do a big day's work with ease. Can eat everything and have put on flesh wonderfully. I will say to all sufferers write to Dr. Pierce. He has my undying gratitude."

Fashions and Fads.

The bolero jacket effect has captivated Paris. There is a pronounced vogue for checked materials. Small coats continue to appear in a variety of shapes.

Very smart indeed is sulphur-colored linen this season. Many parasols are lined with silk of a contrasting color. Charmeuse is gaining its original position as a fabric of elegance.

The newest news from silks is the returning vogue of taffeta. Trianore is a new silk crepe much favored by smart couturiers.

The newest parasols are covered with bordered voile, chiffon or silk. We shall see Venise, fllet, Bohemian, Russian and Irish lace most used.

Wellington. BY H. L. RANK.

On a hundred years ago today the Duke of Wellington was a boy.

several kinds of a viscount or baronet, and in the later years of his life he had to get out new visiting cards every month. He was a gaunt, severe man, and lived mostly on popular acclaim and rare beefsteak, for both of which he had a 60-horse power appetite.

Wellington was born in a castle in Ireland and his profession in life was whipping the French army whenever he met it. The castle was a poor place to live in, as it did not have a bathroom or vacuum cleaner, and Wellington soon went to Eton college, later going to a military school in France, where he learned to perfume his conversation with some of the most popular French quotations.

As soon as Wellington was out of school he started in pursuit of the French army, which was roaming around Spain and attacking people who didn't know the Champs d'Elysees from a new 5-cent cigar. Wellington went over to Spain for the purpose of conducting the funeral of several thousand French soldiers, and by the time he got through the flower of the French army looked like a frosted asparagus bed.

Wellington was about to retire and commune with the gout when Napoleon broke out of Elba and went on the war path. The English people did not like Napoleon's manners, or his blunt style of doing business, and they implored Wellington to go and head him off before he captured Hyde Park and the property owners abolishing thereon. Wellington sent a polite note to Napoleon, requesting him to await and back up, or words to that effect, and on the latter's refusal to do either he took several of the English militia and started for the field of Waterloo.

Napoleon had 130,000 men to Wellington's 70,000, but Napoleon's army was nourished on cream, putts and orange blanc mange and opposed to fighting on an empty stomach. Nevertheless, it took Wellington three days to convince Napoleon that his star was about to set with a bitter plunk, and then it was a re-inforcement of Prussian warriors that turned the trick.

LONDON, May 1. To-day's bulletin says: The Duchesse de Nemours had some wireless counting the night. Her general condition this morning is slightly improved.

LONDON, May 1. The Dominion of Canada is going to be a favorable holiday resort during parliamentary recess this year. The visitors will include members of both sides of the House. They leave England in July for the Antipodes by way of the Dominion.

LONDON, May 1. Miss Kenney, one of the most notorious of the suffragettes, was arrested to-day, as soon as she set foot in England, on her arrival from the Continent. Detectives accompanied her from Paris, bearing a warrant, charging her with conspiracy.

LONDON, May 1. Two cents has brought a letter from the South Pole to London. This is believed to be the record in cheap postage. Two letters, with only a penny stamp, have just been received by Sir Joseph Ward, former Premier of New Zealand. They were mailed in the Polar regions by the late Capt. Scott of the British Antarctic Expedition.

LONDON, May 1. Acting on Kaiser Wilhelm's suggestion of some months ago, an international conference of shipping interests will be held in London, probably in September next, to deliberate on matters concerning the greater safety of life and property at sea, with a view to the completion of the uniform regulations and life-saving rules framed by the Board of Trade directly after the Titanic disaster. These laws come into force on March 1st, and will, it is expected, be amended to some extent, when the boats' davits committee presents its final report. Interchange of opinions is now taking place between the different governments interested. Other measures, notably equipment, ice observation vessels, and the diversion of North Atlantic liners further South, have already been adopted. On July 1st, the new radio-telegraphic agreement will take effect throughout the world. Among other things, it provides for constant wireless watch on ocean-going passenger steamers, and the interruption of long-distance messages for four minutes at the end of every quarter hour, and at times when it is likely that distress calls might, otherwise be heard.

LONDON, May 1. A proposal that the Montenegrin seaports of Antivari and Dubrovnik shall be occupied by a joint international force of Austrians, Italians and British troops, as a further demonstration to assure King Nicholas that the European Powers are resolved to carry out their decision in regard to the inclusion of Scutari in the future Kingdom of Albania, is to be made at to-day's meeting of Ambassadors in London. Should Austria accept this middle course, its adoption will allow time for further pressure to be brought to bear on Montenegro, and for making arrangements to provide her with compensation of some kind. The reply of Montenegro to Europe's demand for immediate evacuation has been received. It is non-committal in character, and keeps the door open for further negotiations. The little Kingdom tells the Powers that it has the greatest deference for them, and declares the capture of Scutari to be in no way a defiance of their decision to give the former Turkish fortress to Albania. At the same time Montenegro suggests there is room for discussion, and reserves the right of bringing up the question of Scutari in the course of the peace negotiations. When the definite delimitations of Albania come up for discussion by the Balkan Allies and the Powers, King Nicholas thus, while he has not consented to yield Scutari, has opened the way for further discussion. In the meantime, arrangements are in progress for the definite conclusion of peace between the Balkan Allies and Turkey. The European Powers have requested the respective governments to appoint plenipotentiaries, who, on meeting in London, will be invited to sign a draft, which the Powers have already drawn up, and which is moderate in tone. Montenegro's reply to the Powers has cleared much electricity out of the diplomatic atmosphere. There is a much more hopeful feeling that an early settlement may be reached. The impression derived by diplomats here from King Nicholas' note is that he is extending his hand, waiting for the compensation which is offered him, and that, as soon as it is forthcoming he will grant Scutari. The general belief prevails that the danger point will be safely passed without a split in the European entente.

Flat Feet Epidemic.

St. Louis Specialist Blames Fallen Arches on Standing in Street Cars. St. Louis, March 20.—Dr. A. E. Black, a foot specialist, shocked the leaders of fashionable society here to-day when he made the statement that many of the women are suffering from that most plebeian ailment, fallen arch, or, as it is more commonly known, flat feet. Dr. Black said that while some of the more than one hundred cases which he has been called upon to treat in the last few days might be traced to the new style English walking shoe, most of them were caused by standing in street cars.
