The White Ladies of Worcester.

A ROMANCE OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY.
(By Florina Barclay.)

Nora, the leading character in this story, believing she has lost her betrothed lover, Hugh D'Argent, either through unfaithfulness or death, while he is absent on a crusade, enters a Convent. Hugh returns and tries to prevail upon her to leave the Convent but she determines to remain true to her vows. To the Bishop of Worcester falls the task of bringing the lovers together, and Nora at last gives herself to Hugh, persuading herself that she is following God's will. Bound in cloth.
