(From N. F. Trade Review.)

Codfish—The exports this week amounted to 14,690 quintals all from St. John's as follows:

S.S. Digby sailing for Liverpool took out 6,002 quintals from Bowring Bros., Ltd., Harvey & Co., James Baird, T. H. Carter, T. Hollett, Job Bros., Ltd., John Clouston, G. Hunt and G. M. Barr. The Little Princess sailed for Bahia with 3,974 quintals from G. M. Barr; the Olive 5,000 quintals to Seattle from Juan Lazo and Co., and the Inspiration 5,714 quintals to Pernambuco from Jas. Baird Ltd. The markets show little improvement. The people want our fish but the stringent condition of finances compel them to buy substitutes, such as locally cured products and the fish from Scandinavia which is selling at a very low price.

Cod Oil—This week there was some activity in cod oil shipments to the Old Country. The S.S. Digby took 6,611 gallons to Liverpool from Messrs Bowring Bros. Ltd. S. S. Belvernon took out 5,187 gallons to Boston from the Franklin Agencies and A. Ebsary. The price is keeping up well and there is a reasonable prospect that 1923 cod oil will open at a much better price than last year. Increased enquiries are coming in from different sources and it looks as if the market was in a very healthy condition.

Codliver Oil—There is a little doing all the time but the price is the difficulty. Reports of Norway's catch show the prospects of a good supply from that source, but indications point to a shade higher prices for the future. We have to wait patiently for further developments of the Norwegian fishery before it is possible to know with certainty what the results will be.

Flour—The market of Canada and the United States continued quiet this week with low export demand. The local wholesale price continues at $9.00 per barrel. This week Chicago May wheat dropped again to 113 and Winnipeg to 114. This is a good indication of an easy market for spring fishery supplying and will show about $2.00 cheaper, flour as compared with last spring.

Pork—There seems to be some activity in the pork market this week. Several buyers who were in the market for spring supplies tendered offers for pork at prices 35 cents under the cable quotations. These offers in all cases were refused by the packers who were firm and in some cases instructed the brokers that markets were stronger and advancing. In view of the large stocks of hogs it is hardly to be expected that prices will advance to any extent. Much depends on the European demand which will be a factor when considering the future market outlook. Prices here are:

Beef—The market shows no change from the high prices that have prevailed the past two months. The high grades especially seem to be specially affected by the strength of the market. These cuts are now $2.00 per barrel higher than the prices ruling in December. The local quotations are $26.50 for Flank, Family $21.00, New York Boneless $21.00. The local demand at the present season is negligible owing to the bad transportation.

Molasses—The price of new molasses has grown very strong. The cost of Fancy is now about 90 cents per gallon, based on the prices of raw sugars. Choice is being quoted ten cents lower which figure is out of proportion to usual differential between the price of these two grades. It is believed that this disparity will be overcome by an advance in the price of Choice owing to a very strong sugar market.

Building Bone

is equally as important as building flesh. Foods that assist Nature, fix lime in the bones and teeth are essential.

Scott's Emulsion

of pure vitamin-bearing cod-liver oil contains elements that energize the body and assist in the formation of strong bones and sound teeth.

Oats—There is a move on oats this week owing to the fact that stocks are being depleted that came in on the Montreal boats. There is not likely to be any imported for some time owing to the recent strength of oats in the foreign markets. The advance is 10 cents per sack higher to import which makes the price here $3.75 for white and $3.95 for black, per sack.

Potatoes—British potatoes are now making an inroad on the local market. They come here by the Furness Withy Line and can be put on board at Liverpool at 60 shillings per sack, or about 4s. 9d. per sack of 150 pounds. The freight must be very high to make these potatoes $4.00 per sack of 150 pounds and $2.20 per half sack. The quality is not equal to that of the P.E.I. potatoes.

Hay—The hay market is very quiet and the city trade is confined to the local cabmen and truckmen. The stocks in hand are ample to supply all requirements till the latter part of April. The price is the same as quoted last week, namely, $37.00 to $38.00 per ton, wholesale for lots, and at the rate of $38.00 to $40.00 per ton for single bales or 2 cents a pound. There is none coming in since navigation closed.

BOW-BOW.

THE DOGGIE'S REQUEST.

Mr. Man, I've something to ask you. You're my only doggie I know. Don't I work for you hard all the winter. Don't I labour on ice and through snow? When you're lost in the storm or the forest, Don't I find the way we should go? Sometimes my feet are so cut up. There's blood on the road all the way. Hauling your wood and your water: Yet I bark and tail-wag the whole day.

I'd work harder still, if I could. Mr. Man, don't I earn me some pay? I'm sure I save dollars and dollars. While ponies cost hay for their feed; I'm feed on the scraps and the peelings.

With cheap frozen caplin at need. My drink is just soapy dish-water. Yet, "cheerio" ever my creed. When I am so weary and foot-sore, I almost drop down in the track. Pulling the huge loads of spruce-wood. Till at home we're finally back. Do you give me a word and a pat. Or it is a kick and a whack? Oh, I know I get a rope twisted And have to be lifted in place. But I really don't do it on purpose; I forget when I tangle the traces; Then I get more confused and so frightened. When I see the black rage in your face. If men were all kindly and gentle, And treated us doggies more white. We would not get cross and so savage. And bite up a stranger at night. We'd growl at, and chew canines only; When we get in a glorious fight.

So please Mr. Man, won't you love me; I have loved you for many a day; And we'd work all the harder together. If we treated all labour as play. The wood would pile higher and wider. The water barrel slop, and o'er flow. If you'd think of me as your fur-brother. Tho' I'm only a doggie, I know. Dictated by an outpouring pup to Mrs. G. W. MacKeen. Newtown, B.B., Feb. 25, 1923.

The Menace of Coakerism.

ARTICLE XI.

The revelations politically in the daily press during the past week disclose an alarming condition of affairs in the public life of the country. No confidence whatever, in view of these scandals, can be felt that questions which affect the very life of the country will be dealt with in a manner which will conserve the interest of our Island Home. There is only one remedy to be applied. The public life of the country must be purged of the men who set party and love of office above their country's welfare. If we are to maintain popular Government and if democratic institutions are to endure we must make up our minds to put an end to the present disgraceful condition of public life in this country. We have had too much of the demagogue in politics, and the man who is prepared to pandor to the greed or passion of the crowd in order that he may attain power and influence to satisfy his selfish ends. To such an extent has this been practiced that a sort of lethargy has fallen upon the people and they have become, as it were, weary and dulled with intrigue and deceit. But let them not forget that this is the very condition which the time-serving politician is striving to create.

THE GREAT DANGER.

We have seen within the past few weeks a steady and determined attempt to hand this Colony and the people over to corporate influence and control. The minions of the corporation worked assiduously to accomplish their ends, and were it not for a few public spirited men, the plot would have succeeded and the liberties of the country strangled. Never was there a time in the light of the present revelations in the public press—and we are only at the very beginning of them—when all who value liberty and the preservation of the institutions of the country should take a more active, earnest and deeper interest in Governmental matters. Corporate influences and venal politicians are striving might and main to secure control. They can only do so if the people permit and support them in their schemes.

What then are we going to do? Is it not time for action, prompt, decisive action, ere it is too late. Let us take the welfare of our country and its free institutions into the innermost recesses of our consciences and let us then examine these questions and take a solemn pledge by the memory of the men who laid the foundations and raised the structure of our free institutions that to the utmost of our endeavors we will protect them against the dishonest influences that now threaten to engulf the country.

Coakerism as we now see it and have learned to know it is a menace that must be destroyed for all time. The defeat of the present Government is the one and only means at present to doom it. The election of a Bennett Government is necessary
