D. A. Anderson, a well-known resident of Paris, is dead, aged 56.

Mr. George Howell, Burford, died on June 8, aged 56.

The four living wives of A. Riley, charged in Brantford with bigamy, are Esther Cronk, Woodstock; Mrs. Kearns, a widow with two children; Phoebe Vise, an Indian, and Mary Schooley, a Delhi girl. The last marriage was celebrated in 1855 by Rev. Mr. Ames, Methodist. Riley's first wife was dead before he married Esther Cronk. There is every reason to believe that Riley has half a dozen other wives through the country, and nearly all the women with whom he has associated have themselves lived with several other men. Since his arrival in Brantford Riley has been living with a colored woman, and he also asked a married woman to elope with him.

died on June 6 at the advanced age of 86 years, 60 of which were spent in his adopted country, Canada. His simple rural life, temperate habits and peaceful disposition was no doubt the secret of his long life. The aged wife still lives on the farm kindly cared for by her youngest son, Thomas, and family.

C. King, a well-known farmer east of Strathallan, has a peacock that is not only beautiful but useful. This sagacious and vivacious bird walks up and down the potato field between the rows, picking off the potato bugs, on which it seems to thrive.

A. J. Brown, Toronto, is once more the lowest tendere on the Woodstock court house, his figure being $59,350. The highest tender is for $65,000, and four other tenders are between these figures. The next lowest tender is that of Thomas McClay, Woodstock, and as Mr. Brown's first tender was for $53,865, and he afterwards asked to add $5,000 to this sum owing to an alleged error in figuring, and as his present tender exceeds his amended figures, it is uncertain whether he will get the contract. The semmittee recommends in his favor, but a special session of the County Council will decide.

A Downie farmer had two cows killed by lightning on Tuesday.

Samuel Willis and his family, of the town line between East Nissouri and the gore of Downie, had a narrow escape at Stratford Wednesday afternoon. They were driving home after 3 o'clock in the democrat. On Erie street the horses became frightened, and turning around threw the father, mother and two of the children out. The team ran down to Ontario street at a terrific pace with only one child—a boy about 7 years of age—in the rig. In front of J. & R. Forbes' livery barn a man named Niebel ran the runnawys into a tree with a crash. The boy was thrown about twenty feet, and at once set up a pitcous cry, but it was soon learned that he was more frightened than hurt.
