Oyama Wants Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Friday, Sept. 23, 3;20 Mukden continues slowly according to information received here. Marquis Oyama's advance guard is 30 miles south of Mukden. Stories printed in the foreign press that a great battle there has already begun are disproved by the actual developments at the scene of operations. From the importance of Mukden as a winter base, it is believed the Japanese will exert every effort to push out the Russians, but it is thought a serious struggle is still some days distant. The Japanese probably will have to reckon first with a stubborn defense of the Fushun mines, where the next important fight is expected. Marquis Oyama is giving up the idea of cutting General Kuropatkin's communication to the northward, and con-tenting himself with advancing upon tenting himself with advancing upon the Russian front and flank in such the Russian front and flank in such fashion as to force the evacuation of the town and compel the Russians to retreat further north.
