Dam Washed Away.
Reports of damage done by Wednesday afternoon's storm are still coming in, and the total loss to property and buildings will likely total up in the thousands. The heavy rainfall that accompanied the lightning and thunder caused the Thames river to rise rapidly and become a raging torrent, with the result that a good deal of damage was done to property along the river banks. Dr. Mitchell, of Kewbury, had a large concrete dam in the course of construction on his property for the purpose of establishing a trout pond beside the Thames. A small creek flows into the dam, but Wednesday's storm turned this into a small river, with a current that was powerful enough to wash away about twenty feet of the concrete dam, causing Dr. Mitchell a heavy loss.

RIDGETOWN TURNS TABLES ON CHATHAM
Tennis Players Meet Again. This Time Late Losers Win.
Ridgetown, Aug. 17.—Ridgetown Tennis Club turned the tables on Chatham yesterday, defeating them by two points. The Chatham Club was very late arriving, and some of the events were necessarily cancelled. Dr. Rose and Miss Arnold, Chatham, defeated Miss Locke and Dr. Groves, Ridgetown, 6-2, 6-4.
Mr. Morley and Miss Waddell, of Chatham, defeated Dr. Routledge and three points. That was about the rate at which she was paid for her poems in those days. But as she could turn out two or three of these poems a day, her friends thought she was doing money at that rate.

SHE MADE POETRY PAY.

Ellie Wheeler Wilcox began to make poetry pay when she was a girl in her early teens, and she is undoubtedly to be classed as one of the most successful of living writers of poetry, measuring success by the pecuniary reward. She began to write verse and prose when she was 8 years old, and she had no doubt, even at that age, that a career as a writer was cut out for her. When she was 9 she wrote a novel, and has poured forth poems, essays and stories continuously ever since. She settled down seriously to business as a writer at an age when most clever girls are thinking about preparing for college. Three or four poems in a day was no uncommon showing for her. She had a great many more rejections than acceptances at first, but she is a born optimist, and so she never got discouraged. She kept her literary productions going the rounds, and the events were necessarily cancelled. After having been rejected a dozen times or so.

Her first check was from one of Frank Leslie's publications. It was for $10 for three poems. That was about the rate at which she was paid for her poems in those days. But as she could turn out two or three of these poems a day, her friends thought she was doing money at that rate.

She began to reap large rewards from her pen with the publication of her first volume of poems. Her collected poems, which were a very solid collection from the greatest number that have flowed from her pen in the course of her busy life, make an imposing row of volumes. The qualities of her poems are those that make a universal, popular appeal, while her style is singularly clear and luminous. These are the qualities that have created for her verse a very wide circle of admirers, and have made her one of the most successful of modern poets.—From an article in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

PSEUDONYMS OF WOMEN WRITERS.
The preference of many women writers for a male pseudonym is doubtless a survival of the old superstition that to engage in the task of authorship was "unwomanly." The Bronte sisters set the fashion in appearing as Currer, Acton and Ellis Bell respectively. Their example was followed by George Eliot. But George is a name to which the distressed lady novelist flies as to a city of refuge. We have George Egerton, George Fleming, George
