second. Of the four miscues made by the visitors, two aided Hamilton in the run-getting.

The visitors failed to even show the danger signal in the initial frame, the first two men up sending high flies to the outtield, but in the second things were different. Schaffer was unable to solve the mysterious delivery of bougherty, but anything he lacked in the solving line was made up for by Lusk, who swatted the pill to right field with such energy that he was safely interned at third base before Kelly Harris returned the ball to the populated district. Merritt followed by sending one down the third base line, which Eddie Linneborn failed to handle properly, and Lusk scored. Lacroix singled to left, after Myers had been an easy infield out. Reisling walked, filling the bases, but Lamy failed to come through with the wallop. Cy Reidy startled the natives by making a single to left field in the third, the first hit he has made in Hamilton this season, but he got caught at second, and none of the other Cockneys managed to reach first until the fifth, when Lamy singled, but got nailed when trying to purloin second.
