Yesterday morning a semi-conscious man was found lying in Queen's park. He had taken Paris-green with a view of suicide. Being removed to the hospital antitoxins were administered, but the poison had done its work and the man died in the afternoon. Deceased was a James Williams, lately from New York.

Mr. A. G. Hodge returned from Buffalo last night, having conducted the Scotch pageants there in a very successful manner. He made a great hit in the Queen city of the lakes. As one of the local papers put it: "Mr. Hodge, 'All plauds and plumes' in the city."

A petition has been got up by the employees of the dry goods and gent's furnishing houses on Queen street west, closing the shops early during the summer months. The petition has been signed by all save three or four crooked merchants, and it is feared that the action of these few will defeat the whole scheme.

Just About the Amount of It.

From the Canadian Sportman.

Those unmitigated Yankee quacks and humbugs, Dr. K. & K., of Detroit, have seized up the Mail, Globe and Telegram, and found the price of their silence to be a two column advertisement. Any man, woman or child who values their life will clear of these medical sharks. The poorest doctor of this city is an encyclopaedia of medical knowledge compared to these two K's. These only qualifications are brass and croak.

Don't Buy Dicky or Faded things when the Ten-cent Diamond Dye will make them good as new. They are perfect and cost but 10 cts.

Andrew's Auction Rooms.

Mr. A. O. Andrews has remodelled and greatly improved his auction rooms, having put in a new front, viz., three pair of doors which, when thrown open, display the whole interior to the public. He claims now that he has the most convenient and spacious sale rooms in the city, 30x160, a receptacle for furniture, pianos, buggies, carriages, safes and other kinds of convertible property assigned to him in auction or on commission. Having command of considerable capital he is enabled to make advances on consignments. Mr. Andrews' commission business in the city twenty-five years ago with his father, who has since retired. He can be found at his office, 151 Yonge street, always ready for auction sales, either at his rooms or at private houses. We notice he has named his business place the Toronto Auction Rooms, 151 Yonge street.

An Eccentrician's Birthday.

The mayor and a number of aldermen yesterday drove out to Colborne Lodge, High park, the residence of Mr. J. G. Howard. It was Mr. Howard's eightieth birthday, and the event was duly celebrated. The visitors presented the venerable gentleman with an illuminated address, congratulating him on having attained an honored old age in the enjoyment of health and happiness, and recording the thanks of the entire community to Mr. Howard for his generous gift of a public park to the city.

Mr. Howard was quite overcome in replying, and felt very gratified to find the city's representative for this honoring him. The visitors were shown through his old-fashioned but interesting dwelling, and afterwards partook of his hospitality.

A Noble Fraud.

From the Woodstock Sentinel Review.

The aristocratic swindler to whom we alluded last week as the "Hon. Hugh Leslie Courtenay" deserves a fuller notice. This was the name under which he was known shortly afterwards when put into Woodstock jail for swindling. He arrived in Buffalo about two weeks ago and stopped at the Royal one day, giving his name as the Hon. Hugh Leslie Courtenay. He next found his way to the residence of a well-known gentleman near town, where he was to do something to do. This gentleman being very good natured, allowed the aristocratic stranger to remain over night, after which he, the Hon. Hugh Leslie Courtenay, thought that he could invite himself to remain indefinitely. He made frequent visits to the house, and was seen by a business man who at once recognized him as the swindler of '75. Some of his yarns, too, "gave him away." Among other things, at the Royal he claimed to have been in the 11th Hussars (cherry-blossoms) as lieutenant. He happened to be speaking to one of this very regiment, who soon discovered that he was an impostor. On Saturday a copy of the Sentinel Review is said to have fallen under his eyes and he left next morning, under the name of Leslie, for his only baggage. He is a rather fine looking young Englishman of about thirty years of age, stands fully six feet, has a white beard, but a light mustache, and generally has a somewhat florid complexion. Judging from his fund of stories and his evident knowledge of many countries, he has travelled a good deal, and is a rather taking impostor.

Ingenious on Death.

The following lines are an extract taken from a letter recently written by Col. Ingersoll from Long Beach to a personal friend who had suggested a bequestment in the death of his mother:

"After all there is something tenderly appropriate in the serene death of the old. Nothing is more touching than the death of the young, the strong. But when the sunset of life has been nobly done—when the sun touches the horizon—when the purple twilight falls upon the present, the past, and future—when memory with dim eyes can scarcely spell the recents of the vanished days—then, surrounded by the kindred and friends, death comes like a strain of music. The day has been long, the road weary, and we gladly stop at the inn."

"Life is a shadowy, strange, and winding road, on which we travel a little way—a few short steps, just from the cradle with its lullaby of love to the low and quiet wayside inn, where all at last must sleep and where the only salutation is 'good night.'"

Nearly forty-eight years ago, under the stars in the little town of Galesburg, my mother was buried. I was but two years old. I remember her as she looked in death. That sweet, cold face has kept my heart warm through all the years."

High Living.

Virginia City, Nev., is 7000 feet above the sea level, and it is difficult to cook meat and vegetables by boiling, as water boils at a low temperature owing to the light atmospheric pressure. There has been a great deal of discussion recently as to the altitude at which human beings can exist in North America. There are towns, such as Potosi, placed as high as the top of Mount Blanc, the inhabitants of which feel no inconvenience. The highest inhabited spot in the world is, however, the Buddhist cloister of Haulu, in Tibet, where twenty-one priests live at an altitude of 16,000 feet. The brothers Schlegel when they explored the glaciers of the Gemin, in the same country, encamped at 21,000 feet, the highest altitude at which a European ever passed the night. Even at the top of Mount Blanc Prof. Tyndal's party found it very unpleasant to do this, as the snow was so bad as to prevent the mountaineers from getting up the mountain in the world in Mount Everest (Himalaya), 29,000 feet, and the condor has been seen winging the blue air 600 feet higher.
