A TRANCE.—A paper was read before the French Academy of Science, in which the following instance was adduced as a reason for abolishing the present custom of burying so soon after death.

A young female had been twice pronounced dead when only in a trance, but had recovered in time to prevent being buried alive.
A third trance came on, and, in consequence of what had previously occurred, permission was obtained from the constituted authorities for the body to remain above ground as long as decomposition should not have taken place.
A week—ten days passed away—there was still no decomposition, but all the medical men declared that she was dead. At length she was laid in her coffin. Only a few minutes before the coffin was to be nailed down and while the bell of the village church was already tolling for her funeral, a female from an adjoining village, who had been school-fellow of the supposed defunct, came to take a last farewell. She stooped to kiss the lips of her departed friend, and remained in that position for some time, the bystanders attempting to remove her lest her emotions should be injurious to her. She waved them off with her hand, and remained with her lips upon those of her friend breathing, as it turned out afterwards, the breath of life into her lungs.
At length she exclaimed, "she lives!" and raising from the body pointed out unequivocal signs of life. She stated as she was kissing her friend she fancied that she felt her breathe and in a few minutes was convinced of the fact. The female who was supposed to be dead, was taken out of the coffin and placed in a warm bed, and, in the course of a few hours, fully revived. She stated that she was, during her trance, fully sensible to all that was passing around her, and that she even heard the death-bell toll, but was utterly incapable of speech or sign to show that she was not dead.

An Infamous Son.—In one of our English papers we find a statement to the following effect, which we think only finds its parallel in the unnatural children of King Lear. In the Taunton County Court, Mr. Coombe applied for the discharge of an insolvent, named George Day, an old man upwards of 70 years of age, who had been imprisoned eight years at the suit of his son, Frederick Day. The old man stated that some years ago he had signed off all of his property, of the value of about £1000, to his children, and having given a note of hand for £50 to Frederic, which he failed to meet at the proper time, he was proceeded against, notwithstanding that he had lent various sums to the son, amounting, in the whole, to nearly £50, but of which no account had been kept.—The result was that the unfortunate old man was thrown into prison, where he remained eight years. His honor, the Judge immediately ordered the insolvent's discharge, observing that he ought to have it eight years ago.

Fredericks of Newark, N. J., was killed and seven others injured, perhaps none of them fatally. The mass of iron plating forming the covering of a large gasometer, fell on escaped injury except the above.
