

tating exchange of information between provinces when persons active with the registry move from one province to another;

(b) promoting information exchange by convening meetings on the subject of child abuse registries with appropriate provincial officials; and

(c) providing a resource service to the provinces on developments in legislation, programs and services in child and family services, including services for the prevention of abuse and neglect and for abused and neglected children.

The Canada Evidence Act and The Criminal Code

11. (1) That it would be desirable to amend the Canada Evidence Act to permit a spouse to give evidence in criminal cases in accordance with the recent recommendations of the Law Reform Commission. Such an amendment would affect criminal cases involving child abuse.

(2) That mandatory reporting requirements exist in provincial and territorial legislation, and that the inclusion of such a provision in the Criminal Code is not therefore recommended.

12. That central registries be established at provincial levels. Under these circumstances, there is no need for a federal registry.

Public and Professional Education

13. That the government consider the advisability of extending public education through media such as the CBC—Radio Canada, National Film Board and such programs as Challenge for Change by including programs on child rearing, child care, family living and child abuse.

14. That appropriate professional schools broaden their curricula to include material on the etiology of child abuse and neglect.

15. That training in child care should begin in primary schools with further courses in secondary and post secondary schools.
