

Rancheria.— On the Trail. — The Scenery. — The Organ of the Almighty; His hand fingers the Keyboard. — Morning. — An alarm. — We meet Friends. — Dr. Parker and Jimmy. — Jimmy's Experience in crossing the Cañon. — He refuses to "inter the Crack." — A ludicrous Adventure. — Captured by the Apaches. — Startling Effect of the Fire in the Cañon. — "Down into Hell without the Absolution of a Praste, or the Satisfaction of dyin'." — We recross the Cañon. — Arrival at the Apache Pass. . . . . 127

CHAPTER X.

A Trip to Tucson. — The Scenery. — A Mirage. — Jimmy's Pursuit of a Bath. — His Return. — He "don't know." — Our Camp for the Night. — A dry Run, a wet Run, before Morning. — We lose our Wheels. — A Search for them. — Jimmy's Consternation. — The Lake and the Mountain Torrent too much for him. — "The Lake as dry as powder." — Where are our Wheels? — "The Devil has 'em." — A Fix, and how we got out of it. — Once more on the Road. — A Mescal Distillery. — How they make it, and how they drink it. — Jimmy the Worse for it. — Arrival at Tucson. — The City and its Inhabitants. — The Santa Cruz. — The Mission of San Xavier del Bac. — Built in 1678 by the Jesuits. — Its great architectural Beauty. — Description of the Buildings. — Its Lesson. — Desolation and Decay. — The Papago Indians. — Old José, their Chief. — His Dress and personal Appearance. — Jimmy compares him to the Kings of "Ould Ireland." — Vespers in the old Mission. — The Choir. — Effect of the Music. . . . . 143

CHAPTER XI.

Bill May's Rancho. — Bill's History. — How he "bugs" the Apaches. — His Story. — The Valley of the Santa Cruz. —