

We then proceeded (fifteen miles) to Bay Verte, where the shell of a respectable church has been erected. A large congregation was assembled, but Mr. Townshend's duty in other places had prevented his attention to the subject of confirmation in this place, where the more frequent services of a clergyman would be likely to be greatly blest. Five persons desired to be confirmed after listening to a sermon on the subject. I could not hesitate in meeting their desire, as they appeared very serious, and are exemplary members of the Church. They listened very attentively to the exhortation that followed, and I urged all to new efforts for the completion of the Church, and promised all I could do to obtain for them the more frequent ministration of the word and sacraments. The night was dark and the road bad, which induced me to accept a most comfortable lodging here at Mr. Allison's, who is a valuable acquisition to the place, to which he has removed from Cornwallis.

AMHERST.—NOVA SCOTIA.

Thursday, August 24.—We drove to Amherst, (eighteen miles,) crossing the boundary between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and found more than two hundred persons assembled. After the second lesson Mr. Townshend baptized two infants, and I then administered holy baptism to nine adults, with whom Mr. Townshend had taken much pains. Their deportment was deeply solemn and affecting.
