NATIONALIST MEMBER DENIES THE REPORT OF FINCEDIARY SPEECHES

P. E. Blondin Replies to Remarks of the Minister of Marine on Disloyal Campaign in Drummond-Arthabaska—Dr. Beland Says Either Blondin or Paquet Must Have Used Language Ascribed to Former.

QUEBEC NOT COGNIZANT OF THE TRUE SITUATION
 OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—(Special.)—When the debate on the address was resumed this afternoon, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, minister of marine and fisheries, continued his criticism of the campaign in Drummond and Arthabaska. In fact the entire session was devoted to a discussion of the methods employed by both parties in the recent by-election, and charge followed upon counter-charge by Conservatives and Liberals, until the amendment of P. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier), upon which the discussion mainly rose, was lost to view.

Mr. Brodeur read more reports of speeches by Nationalists in the campaign, and said he sought to show the influence of these speeches upon the election. They had carried on an incendiary campaign against British connections and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He quoted from a statement of Tancred Marcell, who said he had lived in a parish where the English had desecrated a church and fed their horses from its sacred vessels. He quoted from further speeches in which Marcell described Earl Grey as a creature of the late Cecil Rhodes. The minister of marine defended the governor-general. It was a shame that this sort of conduct was being carried on and, he asserted, it did not represent the feeling of the Province of Quebec.

Continuing, amid Liberal and Conservative cheers, Mr. Brodeur read the advice tendered to the electors of Drummond and Arthabaska. R. L. Borden advised them to vote according to their conscience, which satisfied the minister, as it showed that Mr. Borden did not appreciate the anti-British agitation that had been made. Not so, he maintained, in the case of Hon. George E. Foster, Hon. Robert Rogers and others, who had advised Conservatives to vote against Laurier and the navy. This implied direct support to the Nationalist candidate, to accomplish the embarrassment of the government.

Dealing with the amendment of Mr. Monk, the minister declared that the creation of a navy did not change our relations with the mother country, any more than when Canada provided the base for the Halifax and Esquimaux when Great Britain withdrew her troops from North America. Mr. Monk's proposal was not in accordance with historical record, as was intimated when the minister declared that the fisheries protective service, and even the important question of confederation, was not submitted to the people. The naval policy was an affirmation of Canada's autonomy.

Blondin Defends Himself.
 P. E. Blondin (Champlain), one of the Quebec Conservatives who had been pilloried by government speakers for alleged appeals to racial prejudice during the campaign, said: "I wish to declare to our King in this house and before the country that, during the whole of the Drummond and Arthabaska campaign, the Conservative members who took part in it were true and faithful to our King and our country, in conformity with the principles of the Liberal-Conservative Party."

He took neither credit nor discredit for his presence in the constituency, because, before the campaign opened, the people were against the navy bill. He had heard government workers remark that things were going bad "because of the damned navy bill." He denied that he said Quebec owed nothing to the other provinces, altho something in that sense might have been said. Liberal speakers had stated they were ready to give their lives for Canada and for the maintenance of British supremacy.

No Racial Appeals.
 He also denied that there had been any appeals to race prejudice on the part of the Nationalists, and charged that any such appeals were made by the Liberals themselves. He affirmed that he was opposed to the government's naval policy, because it would alter Canada's relations with Great Britain. Through the campaign the supporters of Mr. Guilbert, had stated they were ready to give their lives for Canada and for the maintenance of British supremacy.

In conclusion he said he desired to register a protest in the name of the electors of Drummond and Arthabaska and of the Province of Quebec at the action of those who had tried to make the people of Canada believe that they were unable to judge a question apart from the criticisms of race prejudice. The minister of marine had fallen a victim to false statements in the newspapers. Quebec had loyally supported Sir John Macdonald, and would continue to do so, but they could give support to an Englishman, as well as a French-Canadian.

Disloyal Language.
 Dr. H. S. Beland (L'Anse-au-Loup) said he had not intended to take part in the debate, but was obliged to do so in view of the remarks of the previous speaker. If Mr. Blondin did not make the statements attributed to him, Dr. Eugene Paquet (L'Isle) must have made them, for they were the only two speakers on that occasion at Victoriaville. He was sure that the house and country realized that disloyal language

M. P. Will Switch
 OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—(Special.)—It is at least to-night that Joseph Girard, the Liberal member for Chicoutimi-Saguenay, Que., is ready to switch over to the Conservative side of the house on the first convenient occasion. Mr. Girard was at one time the Conservative member for that constituency, but at the last election he was returned as a Liberal. While sitting as a Conservative he voted with Laurier.

HOUSE OF LORDS DEBATES LANDSOWNE RESOLUTIONS

King Holds Council on Monday to Complete Formalities for Dissolution.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The house of commons completed its financial business to-day, and will adjourn to-morrow until Monday, when the King holds a council, to complete formalities in connection with the dissolution of parliament.

The house of lords occupied the evening in a discussion of Lord Lansdowne's resolution. Lansdowne said that the resolution the opposition offered was the best substitute they could provide for the government's scheme. No full and complete settlement, he declared, was possible, except on the basis of the reform and re-constitution of the house of lords. The discussion brought out no noteworthy points, and the house adjourned.

The interesting announcement was made to-night that Wm. Redmond will contest Wm. O'Brien's seat for Cork. The suffragettes continued their activities to-night. Besides creating disturbances around the parliament buildings, many of them invaded and clambered on the roof of a hall at St. Pancras, where Chancellor Lloyd-George was making a speech. They interrupted the speaker at various points, but the speaker was unperturbed, merely saying: "Take no notice of those cats meowing."

He also attacked the homes of Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, Lewis Harcourt, and Winston Spencer Churchill, the home secretary. More than fifty arrests were made. All the women arrested yesterday during the attack on Premier Asquith were released to-day, except those against whom charges of assault and battery were made.

Among those held was Mrs. Haverhill, daughter of Lord Alington, who, according to the testimony introduced, had promised to bring a revolver with her on the occasion of the next suffragette demonstration.

Payment of Members.
 LONDON, Nov. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Canadian Associated Press understands the salary the government proposes should be paid M.P.'s is £500 a year. Members of the government are evidently not of the opinion that London is safe, as it is arranged they are to address fifty meetings during the election in an effort to improve the Liberal position in the metropolis.

Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, speaking at a meeting of the City of London Conservative Association, said: "Let everybody realize that the house of lords is to be destroyed, not in the least because the electors of the United Kingdom, who value the British constitution, desire to see it destroyed, but because that section of the electorate which does not value the British constitution want to get home rule." (Cheers.)

TO BE BUILT IN BRITAIN
 United Service Magazine Repeats Assertion of Cruiser Ordered.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—(Special.)—British publications devoted to naval and military subjects continue to assert that a cruiser is being built in Great Britain for the Canadian navy. The latest to do so is The United Service Magazine, which, in its November issue, contains the following paragraph: "The armored cruisers New Zealand and Australia, building for service in the Pacific, will displace 18,500 tons, and will be sisters to the Indefatigable. Orders have recently been placed for protected cruisers for the Australian, Canadian and New Zealand services." The repeated assertion that a protected cruiser that is a ship of the Bristol class, is actually about to be constructed in Great Britain for the Canadian navy, hardly comports with the declarations that all the ships will be built in Canada.

MADERO EVADES THE LOYALIST SOLDIERS

Thought They Had Him Surrounded — Believed to Be Headed for San Enrique Property in Coahuila, Where He Hoped to Mobilize a Mounted Force.

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 23.—Mexican soldiers late to-day raided the San Enrique ranch of Francisco I. Madero, leader of the uprising in Mexico, on the chance of surrounding Madero and capturing several thousand horses, believed to be on the estate. They seized 260 horses, but Madero was not found.

Reports have had it that Madero was headed for the San Enrique property in the State of Coahuila. Furthermore, it was believed by the Mexican authorities that Madero had placed 2000 horses there, with which he intended to mount a force of cavalry.

In addition it was reported that an armed band of revolutionists was encamped last night at Minera, Texas, headed toward the ranch. All these rumors led to the movement to-day, which the Mexican authorities say has effectually checked the plan of Madero to mobilize a force of mounted men to operate in the interior.

Fighting at Chihuahua.
 EL PASO, Nov. 23.—Latest reports are that Chihuahua is in great danger, it being estimated that between 8000 and 10,000 revolutionists are gathered between the city and the plant of the American Smelting and Refining Company. All responsible citizens are armed and expecting to be attacked at any moment. Crowds of defenders occupy the top of all the banks, churches and large buildings throughout the city.

The first authentic accounts of the fighting at Gomez Palacio in Chihuahua were received here to-day when El Eco, a Spanish daily, published at Torre on Tuesday, was brought to El Paso by a passenger from Mexico. A translation of the report follows:

GOMEZ PALACIO, Mex., Nov. 21.—Last night several rumors were circulated to which no one gave credence, but all were greatly surprised at 2 o'clock in the morning by cries and yells of groups of armed and mounted men, who came forth from the ruins of the ancient church of Santa Rosa, situated at the extreme end of the city, where they had been hiding.

"The groups separated, one of them attacking the warehouse of Librado Garcia, close to the municipal offices. Another group attacked the police station, the police dispersing immediately. The invaders went into the jail and released all the prisoners, also they could find, after having shot and seriously wounded the chief of police and one of his men.

Demand of the Arms.
 "Another group went to the city pawnshop, and, breaking in the doors, threatened to kill the clerks, if they did not turn over the arms to them. Still another group went to the state sub-treasury and demanded $5000. Mariano Garcia, the collector, opened the cash box, and gave them their contents, a little more than $800.

"At 5 a.m. a number of revolutionists, mounted, started toward Torreón, taking all the way, free of charge, the Rurales, who opened fire, the revolutionists turning and scampering away. Then came infantry in two sections, and a mounted force of 200 men.

A SURPRISE SPRUNG IN THE FEDERENKO CASE

Requisition of Russian Government for Extradition Stated Crime Was Political One.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 23.—(Special.)—The argument on the Federenko writ of habeas corpus case, which resumed to-day before Judge Robson, resulted in a surprise being sprung, when counsel for the defence pointed out that in the evidence of requisition of the Russian Government it was stated that the crime was a political one. It was also explained that, under the Russian law obtaining at the time, all trouble between civilians and police came under the head of political crime. Special treatment is devised by the government, and there are special provisions made for arrests and trials in such cases.

DREXEL NEARLY REACHED THE 10,000 FOOT MARK

Broke the Altitude Record With a Score of 9970 Feet—Air Too Rare to Go a Foot Higher.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—J. Armstrong Drexel broke all aeroplane altitude records here to-day, when he climbed above this city until his Blériot monoplane was unable to make further progress in the rarified atmosphere. The ink in the needle of his barograph ran out at 9970, which was accepted as a new world's record to-night by Clifford B. Harmon, chairman of the National Council of Associated Aero Clubs of America, and James King Duffy, the secretary of that body. The instrument in the same one which Johnson carried, when he made the former record of 9714 feet at Belmont Park on Oct. 31.

Mr. Drexel left the aviation field at Point Breeze, in the extreme southern part of the city at 22. He landed at Orland, about twenty miles north of the spot where he had started, at 4.46.

In his climb he had traveled at least 30 miles to the northward, for when he started to descend, after trying for 15 minutes to force the machine higher, he glided down for a distance which he estimated to-night at about six miles.

He briefly did the monoplane descend to the level of the city, but he never brought his machine to the ground without injury.

The British steamer Vauxhall, from New York for Muscat, Arabia, which arrived at Algiers yesterday with five in her hold, has been beached, and her No. 2 hold flooded.

RUNS AMUCK, SPOOLS SEVERAL
 Colorado Saloonkeeper, Convicted of Assault, Holding Town at Bay.

NEWCASTLE, Col., Nov. 23.—William Griffith, a saloonkeeper, enraged at his conviction for assault, ran amuck on the streets here this evening and killed one man and badly wounded two others. He then barricaded himself in a room in the bank block, shooting thru the window at everyone who approached.

William Davis, a bystander, is dead with a bullet in his brain. City Marshal Remick was wounded in the abdomen. Philip Carpenter, who was passing along the street at the time of the shooting, was shot in the neck and will die.

Griffith was convicted in the district court at Glenwood Springs yesterday on a charge of assault, the complaint being J. T. Sample. Pending an appeal he was released on bond. He returned to Newcastle and Sample was the first person he saw after alighting from the car. He immediately opened in pursuit. Marshal Remick tried to intercept the pursuer, and was shot down after which Griffith fired into a crowd of spectators. Griffith then fled to the bank block.

The sheriff was summoned from Glenwood and hurried to the scene with a posse.

CORONER'S JURY WASTING TIME DISMISSED

Dr. Elliott Would Not Stand for Unnecessary Adjournment That Would Roll Up Fees — Jurymen Said They Wanted to See the Scene of the Fatality.

"We cannot stand for the wasting of so much valuable time and so much of the people's money to satisfy your frivolous curiosity," said Coroner Elliott last evening, when, for the first time in years, a coroner's jury was dismissed.

This occurred at the inquest to enquire when and where and by what means Douglas Lucas, who was killed in an elevator shaft Tuesday evening, came to his death. The jury, after the coroner had sent them to deliberate, decided that an adjournment was desirable, to secure further evidence, and so reported to Coroner J. E. Elliott, upon consultation with County Crown Attorney Baird, decided that, as the jurymen had already said that they required no further evidence, it was not necessary to hold a further session.

After the hearing of evidence had been many times interrupted by Foreman Frank Ransome, members of the jury, Coroner Elliott remarked: "I must call your attention to the fact that this is a court as important, as honorable and of as high a dignity, as any in the land. I must ask you, as jurymen of this court, to conduct yourselves with the dignity and decorum suitable in such a court."

They Asked for More.
 The interruptions were discontinued for a time and when, at the close of the hearing, the coroner asked if they desired to hear any further evidence, the jury declared that they did not. After about 30 minutes spent in discussion, however, they seemed to have altered their minds, and returned to ask that the policeman who had stood over the body be called, and that the city elevator inspector be brought, as he might give other evidence than the inspector of the Otis-Egmont Company, who had been heard.

They, thru their foreman, also objected to the photograph of the elevator supplied, and thought that they should visit the scene at another session.

Coroner Elliott then remarked that he considered their request frivolous, and the foreman asked if he would be the jury as to whether there should be an adjournment or not.

"That is not your right nor your privilege. Sit down," ordered the coroner, who, turning to Mr. Baird, asked, "What is to be done?"

"Nothing but dismiss the jury," was the quiet reply; and the coroner turned to the jury. "You are asked," he said, "after a jurymen's amazed silence the jury gathered up their hats and coats and filed out of the room."

"Good Thing" for Some.
 The incident really is a case of a determination by the authorities to put an end to an unnecessary double session habit which has developed among some coroners and a number of jurymen. Many inquests are how simple, but the coroner has been repeatedly drawn to this needless waste of money by the coroners and the crown attorney, who have protracted two sessions. Attention has been repeatedly drawn to this needless waste of money by the coroners and the crown attorney, who have protracted two sessions. Attention has been repeatedly drawn to this needless waste of money by the coroners and the crown attorney, who have protracted two sessions.
