NINETEENTH YEAR

Deems it Best Not to Attack the Augmented

Forces at Santiago Until Reinforced.

WAR NEWS PARAGRAPHED.

Admiral Cervera is quoted as saying, "I would sooner lose my ships at sea like a sailor than in the harbor. It was the only thing left for me to do."

Shafter and Sampson have been asked by President McKinley to confer as to the advisability of entering the harbor to assist in the bombardment of Santiago.

Severe land fighting continued during the time the Spanish fleet was leaving Santiago harbor.

The Spaniards do not recognize the red cross on the arms of the surgeons. Those wearing the Red Cross Society emblem have been the special object of attack.

Two British warships are on their way from Kingston, Ja., to Santiago in order to bring away British subjects desirous of seaving that of Cervera's squadron with as much enthusiasm as if the victory had been theirs instead of belonging to the navy.

Spanish officials at Madrid are laboring under the delusion that the Spanish fleet successfully eluded Sampson's squadron in Cervera's attempted escape from Santiago.
