THE STREET CAR OUTRAGE. the Toronto Railway yesterday for the wretched accommodation it provided passengers. It would, perhaps, be more in order for them to direct their cursory reduty yesterday certainly did not come up patronage and influence. These politicians tection from the rain, which incessantly is to them, and them alone, that the mabeat in upon those who were obliged to ree chine is responsible. This Government is spot to sit upon. The service which the company provided yesterday will undoubtedly result in numerous cases of sickness, if not of death. While citizens are obliged to put every member of the Government, it means up with this wretched accommodation, the as many thousands a year, together with company is raking in profits to the extent all the accessories of office. If anyone of a thousand dollars a day every day in the year. That the people of a modern city should be subjected to such influman treatment as Torontonians had to put up with yesterday is scandalous. Someone should be held responsible for the outrage and be made to pay the penalty. We take it that the City Engineer is the party primar-ily responsible. He is designated in the agreement as the official who is to look after the rights of citizens. But he never seems to take the slightest interest in the carrying out of the Street Railway agreeis exhausted that he condescends to investigate any grievance. These periodic complaints should not be left to the press tect the people against the open cars which intelligible on no other hypothesis. the people hold responsible for yesterday's outrage. The Railway Company, on the other hand, acts on the supposition that it brain with useless, effete matter. Efcontrols the Council and Engineer. As a matter of fact, the company seems to have a lien upon those whose duty it is to protect the citizens. The transfer of Mr. Keating from the service of the city to that of the company, the appointment of Mr. Rust upon Mr. Keating's recommendation, Mayor Shaw's subserviency to street railway in-fluence—these circumstances all point to the fact that the company exercises too much control over our officials. The com fort and convenience of the people 's so closely identified with the street railway service that we should have an official giving his whole time to the study of the ser-self justice. It would pay the company to make a close study of the public conven lence. But how can we expect this when the president has only an occasional day to give to the affairs of the company? We should imagine that a great concern like the Toronto Railway should have at its head a man who is constantly on duty and accessible to the public on all occasions. The present incumbent, with interests in a score or two different concerns, can hardly do justice to the company?
