BLAME OTTAWA IGNORANCE FOR THE TARIFF MUDDLE

Misconceptions as to the Differences Between U.S. and Canadian Duties Responsible For Delay.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 13 .- A general misconception of the provisions to be largely responsible for the little progress thus far made in the tariff negotiations between the American commissioners and the Canadian authorities in their Ottawa conferences. It is learned at the state department that previous to their arrival, assertions were generally made that the United States tariff on Canadian products was twice as high as the Canadian tariff on products of the United States. This was shown to be an error, The tariff officers of the United States presented official statistics showing that on the imports from Canada into the United States for the fiscal year 1909, the average ad valorem rate on dutlable and free imports was only 11.2 per-cent., and on On the other hand it was shown that the Caradian ad valorem rate on free and dutiable imports from the United States was 12.5 per cent., and on dutiable imports was 24.9 per cent. The total duty collected by Canada on all imports from the United States amounted to $22,500,000.

It was also disclosed that the material reductions made by the Payne-Aldrich law on Canadian imports into the United States were not understood in Canada. On this basis of the fiscal year quoted, the reduction amounted to more than $1,000,000, equivalent to a reduction of nearly 10 per cent. A part of the year quoted was one of industrial depression, but on the volume of business which is already shown for the present year the reduction will the present year, the reduction will prove to be much larger. While this was the situation as to Canadian products imported into the United States, it was disclosed that the remission of duties which the United States would have received in the year noted, if it had enjoyed the benefit of the preferential rates given France and twelve other countries, would have been approximately $800,000. On the basis of
