

Indeed, when the whole Diocese is considered, wherein are several well populated city parishes, there is found to be an average of merely 65 enrolled scholars to a Parish.

Your Committee note with great thankfulness that in two Deaneries, those of St. John and Kingston, Sunday School Teachers' Associations have been established with excellent results. In each Deanery special opportunities for receiving instruction are afforded the Teachers, which have borne fruit in the number of names sent in by them as candidates for examination for diplomas or prizes. At the last examinations of Teachers, held on May 16th and June 2nd, 1885, five candidates competed in the Deanery of St. John, and 12 in the Deanery of Kingston, and all did very creditable work.

Your Committee are well assured that the value of these Associations for Sunday School work is inestimable, and they would earnestly recommend the formation of similar organizations in every Deanery of the Diocese.

While drafting this report, your Committee have received tidings that a Sunday School Association for Teachers has recently been formed in the Deanery of Shediac, from which it is expected a return will be made next year.
