Hydro's Chief Engineer Discusses Interlocking Tile for Walls

Mr. Harold S. Johnston, Chief Engineer for the Nova Scotia Power Commission was in charge of the designing and construction of the Ruth Falls Development where Interlocking Tile was used for the generating station. He finds:

"This tile has made a most substantial wall through the interlocking properties, which also aids in preventing the seepage of water through the walls from outside. The tile surfaces have also held themselves readily to the application of Alsiop's stucco on the outside and to plastering on the inside."

Walls that stop dampness, fire, sound, frost—that have no upkeep cost—that can be laid several times as fast as other materials—are worth investigating.

Report That Woman Resembling Mrs. McPherson Crossed Border, Being Probed

Mrs. McPherson, pastor of Angelus Temple here, disappeared a week ago yesterday while surf bathing at Ocean Park. An extensive search of the ocean in the vicinity of where she was last seen, has failed to reveal her body.

According to information obtained by the newspapers, border officers notified that of two women crossing the border recently in a car from California, one of them closely resembled descriptions of the missing evangelist.

A house plate number furnished by the El Paso sheriff is said to have revealed that the car was registered in the name of a person known as Mrs. McPherson.

The Countess of Ashburnham has gone to Massachusetts from her home in Fredericton for a visit to her nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Thompson, at 155 College avenue, West Somerville. ### MILLIONS SAVED BY TRIVIAL INCIDENT

Colorado Woman's Hatred of Dirt in Mine Office Led to Important Discovery

NEW YORK, May 26.—Like many other discoveries and inventions, the so-called process for treating low-grade ore was developed from a trivial incident, says "Popular Mechanics." The story, told by a Colorado mining man, as recounted by others.

While in her brother's assay office in Denver a young woman saw a pile of dirty ore sacks. Her natural instinct for cleanliness prompted her to scrub them. She doused the bags into a pail of sudsy water and swished them about until a scum appeared on the surface.

The coating contained what seemed to be bits of metal, but she could not believe that such material would float. However, she saved the scum and when her brother returned it was analyzed. It contained lead and zinc which had risen to the top on the bubbles of gas, just as they now rise in the modern flotation process on tiny rafts of oil.

The brother attempted to develop the idea in a small way and interest other mining men. Scientists took it up, but the method was used merely as a secondary process until, some ten years ago, Australian metallurgists succeeded in floating silver, lead and zinc separately on different oils. After the World War more rapid progress was made with the method until it is now used in almost every part of the mining world, making paying projects out of workings regarded as unprofitable.
