Tener Breaks With Commission
New York, July 9.—The imbroglio between the American and National leagues regarding the status of player Scott Perry flamed afresh today when John K. Tener, president of the National League notified his club owners that he would have no further dealings with the National commission of which he is a member.
This announcement verges dangerously upon a declaration of war between the major organizations, as the national commission rules distinctly state that the presidents of the two leagues shall be members of the commission and the

A fast and exciting game of baseball was played on the baseball ground last night between the Young Victorians and Young Turtles. Victorians won by a score of 7 to 4. Batteries for Victorians, Bridges and B. O'Neill; Turtles, MacManus and Nixon.

THE TURF
Surprises on Grand Circuit.

Cleveland, July 9.—With the exception of the 212 pace each event on today's Grand Circuit card at North Randall was captured in straight heats with honors divided between favorites and outsiders. The 212 pace caused the biggest upset of the afternoon. After Margaret Margrave had taken the first heat she was forced to succumb in the second to Grace Elder, which paid $417 for a $2 pari mutuel ticket. However, Margaret Margrave captured the third and deciding heat.

The first division of the Fasig three-year-old trot won by Mable Locke, which was practically overlooked in the betting.
Selah Baird, the favorite, won the $200 trot in rather easy fashion from Hank Stout, the contender in each heat.
In the $204 pace, Hal Boy, the other successful favorite had things his own way.

SCENES AT A BRITISH BASE

Camps, Guns, and Bustle of Transport Workers at Army's "Heart"

Behind the British Lines in France, June 20.—(Associated Press)—As general headquarters is the brain of the army from which all orders emanate, so the base is, in a very large measure, the heart, whence the blood circulates to the remotest parts of the body.
A visit to a base shows that it is something far bigger and more comprehensive than a camp—it is a district. Its centre is a town of size and importance, a town whose church spires and towers render it visible from a long distance, while its railways and street car lines present a busy scene during all hours of the day and night. There is a large civilian population, covering on business as usual, though air raids are frequent, and demolished houses are constant reminders of ever present danger. The town hall has been badly damaged, and a shot hole from a long-range naval gun can be seen in the tower.

In the streets of the town, people of all five continents jostle one another. There are the French, civilian and military; there are British troops of all ranks and descriptions, even the khaki-clad women of the Auxiliary Army Corps; there are Australians, Canadians, Americans, Belgians, Chinese, East Indians, and African negroes. The latter make excellent transport at the base, while the Chinese are employed on ordinary labor of various kinds.

The sight of two Chinese bathing in a small puddle in a busy square, using their soap by turns and drying themselves on strips of rag with true Oriental unconcern as to all that is going on around them, is becoming familiar. Their camp is some distance from the town, and their nearest neighbors are the inhabitants of a German prisoner-of-war camp, who can be seen daily at work in a leisurely manner on a military railway. Their work in the open has tanned them to an almost African brown and the slender size of their guard suggests that they are very well contented with their lot and not at all anxious to attempt escape.

In the town itself can be seen guns by the hundred, parked as close as they can possibly be packed. Outside the town are other parks of artillery and wagons and dumps of munitions and engineering materials. There are camps everywhere—some for men waiting to go up the line, others for those who are employed more or less permanently at the base on transport, and other duties. Hospitals are situated here, too, always on the sites most favorable for fresh air and sunlight. The quarters of the base commandant, the base cashier, the ordinance officer, and other important officials are situated in the town itself.

Notices in both French and English are posted everywhere about the place and police military police are on duty at cross roads and other points of importance.

COURT UPHOLDS NORDICA WILL
The decision of Justice Lawrence of the Monmouth County, N. J., orphan court, refusing to set aside the will of Lillian Nordica, grand opera singer, was sustained in a decision filed by Vice Chancellor Eugene Stevenson. The will was contested by George W. Young, husband of the testatrix, on the ground that proof of the will was lacking.

The residue of the estate, said to be worth $40,000, is left to three sisters of the singer. The appeal was taken to Jersey City chiefly on affidavits. Mrs. Nordica died in 1914 on Thursday Island in the South Sea.

Queen Square League
The Dominions and Courtneys of the Queen Square Baseball League, West End, would like to have a meeting called this week to make arrangements for the reopening of the league. Victors and Giants please note. Date and place of meeting to be arranged.

The Church of England Sunday School Association for the diocese of St. John held a meeting in the vestry of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Fairville, yesterday. Rev. W. P. Dunham, president of the association, was chairman. A resolution was passed, to be forwarded to Rev. G. F. Scott, regarding the loss sustained by his removal, and expressing hope for his success in his new field.

Lieut.-Col. D. F. Pidgeon, general auditor of the militia department, Ottawa, was in the city yesterday, and left last evening for Halifax, where he will formally take over the audit branch of that district. All district paymasters' offices in the dominion are now under control, and will, in future, be carried on under civilian administration. The office in St. John, which has heretofore been under charge of Major Amund, will in future be conducted by W. F. Fraser, and temporary offices have been opened in the Masonic building.

It transpired at the I. W. W. trial at Chicago that that association planned to poison the U. S. army.
