THE SOLDIERS' SPIRIT

FRENCH AND THE FRENCH.

Paris, Nov. 1.—Field Marshal French is very popular with both the French and the British soldiers, despite the fact that he is the strictest of disciplinarians.
A French soldier, who had just been brought to the base hospital from the front with a shattered leg, on hearing that the British commander was in the vicinity, requested his nurse to ask Field Marshal French to come and shake hands with a humble ally who did not know whether he would survive an operation.

Sir John immediately complied. The soldier kissed the commander's hands, saying: "I am ready to die, after meeting this famous general."

TEMPER OF RUSSIAN ARMY.

London, Nov. 1.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Observer, sends the following:
"According to a report being circulated in army circles, Russia recently has been approached regarding the concluding of peace with Germany. It is said that the German emperor wrote a personal letter to the Dowager Empress, urging her to persuade the Russian emperor to make peace.
"The Dowager Empress forwarded the letter, without comment, to Emperor Nicholas, who sent it to Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian army.
"The Grand Duke returned the letter with this comment:
"If you comply, our armies will mu-tine, and there will be a revolution in all the Russias."

BELGIAN REFUGEE

IN BOSTON TELLS OF GERMAN OUTRAGESSaw Charities Go Insane in Streets and Selves Amid Roaring Flames

Boston, Nov. 2.—One of the crew of the steamship Gallion, which arrived here last week, is Arthur Lege Vermante, a Belgian refugee, formerly a professional chauffeur, who was working in a mine in Belgium when the war broke out. Through great influence he became an engineer on the Gallion.
A few days before she sailed from Hull, England.

Mr. Vermante, who speaks the English language fairly well, and who has a convincing way of making himself understood by reason of saying the same thing over several different ways, says that words, no matter how expressive, must and do fall short of describing the occurrences in Belgium.

"I'm a refugee," said Mr. Vermante, "and I saw something that I can never forget. I cannot sleep at night. I see in my sleep just what occurred in the streets of Belgium when I was there fleeing for my life. I lost all my clothes when I started to flee, having only torn pantaloons on; nothing else. Hundreds were like myself in the streets, with bullets and fire all around us.

"When a great force of the German Army arrived one night at 11.30 at Charleval, I was down in the bottom of the mine. We had been expecting the enemy for a week, but we thought when they would arrive they would be held back from the neighborhood of the mines for days at least.

"We men in the mines were shouted at through a long trumpet to come up, but to preserve order while being brought up from the deep mine. There were 200 of us in the mine and thirty of us were brought up each time.

"I was in the third batch to be brought up. When I got up a fearful spectacle met my gaze. All around us houses were burning up. Not fewer than 300 houses, thickly inhabited by the poorest class, were ablaze.

"Fathers and mothers ran through the streets insanely, but very few of them got far, for there was no place for them to go, as the bridges all around had either been blown up or had been set afire.

"I had to stay in Belgium for some days after this, and I saw hundreds of bodies of women and children lying dead in the ruins.

"Two or three days before this destruction of life and property at Char-leval the German army in a town ten miles away, killed several hundred, mostly women and children and laid the town flat by bombardment. So far I have heard little about persons going mad or insane in the streets, but I tell you there were many persons made insane in Belgium because of what had occurred.

"Small post office buildings, newspaper buildings, stores and libraries were destroyed by the army of Germany.

"I happened to be one of 7,000 Belgians thrust into a government sent away to Ghent and when we arrived there more than 10,000 other Belgian refugees were there and we were all pretty well provided for.

"The Germans who captured hundreds of Belgians as prisoners, abused them terribly, spitting in their faces and robbing them of everything they had.

OFFICERS AT BREAKFAST
WHEN TORPEDO STRUCK

London, Nov. 1, 5.20 p.m.—Dr. Mofatti, surgeon of the British cruiser Hermes, which was sunk by a German submarine yesterday, speaking today at a reception meeting on the marine parade ground at Dover, gave a brief story concerning the sinking of his vessel.

"We were all sitting at breakfast," said Dr. Moffatt, "and the first intimation we received that anything was wrong was when the plates on the table fell about the wardroom and our breakfasts fell into our laps. There was no panic. Every man flew to his station in good order. I went to the sick bay and saw to the removal of the invalids and then went on deck and reported that all the sick men had been put into boats."
