TATISTICS FOR 1906 TRADE OF

HILLSBORO.

(Moncton Times.)

Customs Collector Binney and staff value, $32,173. have furnished the Times with the statistics of foreign shipments from Moncton and outports for 1906, showing a considerable increase. The totals for last year are $629,219, as compared with $510,357 in 1905, $473,433 in 1904, and $559,253 in 1903. The plaster shipments from Hillsboro show some falling off, being 75 vessels, 46,485 tons register and 101,821 tons plaster, as compared with 115 vessels, 66,934 tons register and 122,233 tons plaster in the previous year. There is, however, a great expansion in the lumber shipments from Hillsboro. The total trade by ports last year as compared with 1905, is as follows:

life by the short of the Sound, we find him suddenly transported within the walls of Paris, hemmed in by the Prussian armies.

His old friend, Arago, very influential in the government that deposed Napoleon III., who was organizing armed resistance to Bismarck and Moltke, had him appointed Mayor of the Eighteenth Electoral District (arrondissement of Paris, the quarter of Montmartre, This district was one of twenty in the city, and Clemenceau had about 150,000 to care for during the siege, for whose daily rations he was immediately responsible. He made a strong and effective official, and even in those early days waged a campaign for the separation of Church and State in France.

Spring saw the siege over, the Prysteric of the separation of the state of the state of the state of the separation of th in France.

Spring saw the siege over, the Prussian armies gone and the Government of M. Thiers installed at Versailles. There was an initial concussion between the government and the popular feeling of Paris over the national cannon on the hill of Montmartre, and two French generals, Thomas and Lecomte, were shot by the populace.

Clemenceau did everything in his power to save their lives, and for nearly two hours ran the gauntlet of the mob in a heroic effort to stop the execution of the generals; he was too late, however, and only by a miracle escaped a like fate himself. That long struggle through the howling and frenzied mob he has called his "Way of Calvary."

the fact that the French Chamber contained no less than seven parties, and by a sudden alliance between two or three of them a large majority might melt away in an hour.

Clemenceau was the ablest leader of the Radical Republicans, and his policy was entirely clear and practical. First, he stood for a realization of the hopes of the great French Revolution, most of which had been thwarted by Napoleon I. or the restored Bourbons.

He pointed out, in debate and in the press, that France was still living in the frame made by Napoleon I., and had hardly advanced at all in three-dual had hardly advanced colonial adventure in Tonkin, Madagascar, Tunis and Egypt.

"We do not need colonies in Africa and the Orient! What we need is to colonize France," he said in the campaign which brought about Ferry's overthrow.

Again, he consistently opposed the alliance between France and Russia, being too good a Republican to wish to see his beloved country bound to the destinies of a retrograde despotism. He strongly advocated such an understanding with England as has recently been effected, and the foreshadowed entente between England, France and Italy realizes one of his shadowed entente between England, France and Italy realizes one of his an established manufacturing or who

Yet perhaps the strongest claim of Clemenceau to the gratitude of his country and the admiration of the world is the splendid stand he made for justice and the honor of France in the famous Drevius case when for C. "SANEST RADICAL IN EUROPE."

One of his biographers says that it was his pleasant duty to accompany his pupils in their daily promenades. ret it would be an error to treat M. Clemenceau as a sensational figure. A far truer characterization is "the sanest radical in Europe." And we might go even further and say that since his twentieth year, for well nigh half a century, Georges Clemenceau has stood as the manifest and most vicasure or treatment. century, Georges Clemenceau has stood as the manliest and most vigorous embodiment of the republican ideal.
