

REAL STORM AT SEA SHOWN IN WILLIAM FARNUM PICTURE

One of the most thrilling sights possible on the screen is the sinking of a ship in a storm—even if the storm is "made to order." But there are storms—and storms. Those who were concerned in the making of the storm scene in "The Scuttlers," which will be shown at the Opera House, Wednesday and Thursday, July 27 and 28 declare they got the thrill of their lives.

Even William Farnum, the popular William Fox star, who has been in many thrilling scenes, says this scene surely made his red blood run fast. And the camera-men who photographed the picture are willing to sign a statement that they want no more thrills of this calibre.

The action took place outside of San Francisco on board of a 250-foot ship, taken over by the Fox company for the purpose. J. Gordon Edwards was directing the picture. The day was rather mean and threatening, but this gave the grey light necessary for the scenes. Mr. Edwards intended to pump the storm from the ocean in the customary motion picture way; but the vessel had hardly pushed its way beyond the three-mile limit when rain began to fall, and a high wind dashed the waves over the ship. At first Mr. Edwards, as he balances himself on the rolling deck, thought it would be well to return to port.

"Just the kind of weather we want," Farnum insisted. "Put an umbrella over the camera, Gordon—and this ought to be corking stuff."

So a shelter was made for the camera and the storm scenes taken. Little rehearsal was needed. The real action was there. The company didn't try to act. What the members endeavored to do was to keep on their feet. Their faces, too, expressed the right emotion. One man became too realistic. He got seasick and had to be taken out of the line of the camera.

In "The Scuttlers" are other remarkable scenes, embodied in a peculiarly thrilling story of romance and adventure. According to report, Farnum, in this picture, is seen at his best. Don't Miss It.

NOT A WHISPER

One day the children were having an object lesson on the blue heron. The teacher called attention to the small tail, saying, "The bird has no tail to speak of." Next day she asked the scholars to write a description of the bird, and a little girl wound up by saying: "The blue heron has a tail but it must not be talked about."

In Dublin a zealous policeman caught a cab driver in the act of driving recklessly. The officer stopped him and said:

"What's your name?"

"Ye'd better try and find out," said the driver peevishly.

"Sure and I will," said the policeman, as he went round to the side of the cab where the name ought to have been painted; but the letters had been rubbed off.

"Aha!" cried the officer. "Now ye'll git yersel' into worse disgrace than ever. Yer name seems to be obliterated."

"You're wrong!" shouted the driver triumphantly. "Tis O'Sullivan!"
