

Amphitheatre ranger station, British Columbia.

schools have been established. In the United States, training has been supplied to some extent by special ranger schools, of which quite a number exist in connection with state and other universities, and also by the government itself through its ability to select only suitable candidates, as determined by a qualifying civil service examination, and then train these men in its organization, under civil service rules that require a man to show satisfactory results or suffer dismissal.

A party of forest rangers, Northern Alberta.