Mississaugans were asked if they were disturbed by inmates from Mimico Correctional Centre (a minimum security prison) working in Mississauga parks this summer.

Margaret Swan: "It's a good idea that they are channelled into these work projects. I have no concerns about their being attracted to and bothering sunbathers. If they're kept busy they won't have time for anything else."

Patrick McNeil: "My only concern is the safety of the kids. Kids have a habit of bugging workers and I wonder if they can take it. Otherwise, it's a good idea and gets the parks cleaned up."

Greg Pierre: "We're saving money and they're learning how to work. It will teach them a lesson and it's a good idea."

Sandy Bolletta: "It's a good idea. I have some concerns though. I wouldn't sunbathe with inmates around, and if I had kids there I'd keep my eye on them."

Linda Ward: "I don't like the idea, but it depends. We have a flasher in McKenzie park and that's worse. I'd have some concerns about sunbathing with inmates around."

Anne Hard: "It's a good idea. They should restrict the inmates to those who have not committed violent crimes or offences against children. We have inmates working in our apartment gardens in the summer and there's never been any problem."

Nadine Steedman: "I might let my kids go down alone - I'm not sure. They're not hardened criminals, but I'd object if they were from a place like Kingston. If they're well supervised it's a good idea, I guess."

Russ Ewing: "There's nothing wrong with it. I have no concerns if they're well supervised. They should find more types of work for them - anything where they're meeting more people so they can get used to regular life. I sure wouldn't want to be cooped up in prison."

You will have to be totally tuned in if your needlework is to become art

By JO ANN STEVENSON
Times staff writer

Anne Dyer knows how to look. "Looking is the most important talent an artist can develop," says Dyer. "You can see fascinating varieties in shapes and texture - a leaf that curls around a slug hole is infinitely more interesting than a straight leaf."

Anne Dyer professes to be able to learn any craft within two weeks and teach it to anyone. She is the county crafts teacher for Herefordshire and Worcestershire in England and is currently repeating a five-week tour of Canada and the United States in this capacity.

Gail Roche, owner of Hummingbird House on Lakeshore Road invited Dyer to give three workshops in needlework at her shop.

Dyer feels embroidery should show atmosphere and reflect what the soul sees. Embroidery is motions and movement. The art of embroidery is one of the slowest decorative crafts. For this reason it is better to use embroidery when other art forms don't create the desired effect. Embroidery shouldn't imitate painting or weaving, she says.

A variety of stitches used together can give an effect that can't be achieved in painting or weaving. "I'm never proud of my work," said Dyer, "because I believe that each work I do creates a different me. I evolve through my work so that looking back at it, I feel ashamed."

In spite of this, there are two works of which Dyer is proud. They are the two pieces that took off from where she was leading them and embroidered themselves. One is a turtle that insisted on laughing, and the other is a wood spirit that spies unsolicited from a tree. "I always have that sense of something greater than myself watching from the trees and the damn thing embroidered itself."

Canadians & Britains started their revolution in embroidery in the 1950s. The Americans didn't catch fire until the 70s.

"Basically the British focus is on the stitch, and a mosaic is built from that stitch. Canadians started with painted canvas so they think about embroidery as a space and filling the space in.

Americans are still too concerned with what it says in the book. I'm Welsh, so perhaps it's natural for me to try the opposite of what a book says."

Dyer feels that her understanding of the principal that things will always happen in certain ways applies to crafts. This facility may be related to Dyer's membership in Mensa, the club for those with an IQ of 150 or better. "I don't bother with Mensa any more," Dyer said. "They seemed to have trouble with the real world and I seem to get along well with the world."

Try Jamaican cooking for something sweet and something hot

By BETTIE BRADLEY
Times Community Editor

Pop in and out of Mississauga grocery stores and you'll see fruits and vegetables you've never seen before and may not even know how to eat.

Many of the exotic foods come from the Caribbean and more than a few from Jamaica. (Specifically, Jamaican imports can be bought at Square One shopping centre and the Miracle Food Mart at 3415 Dixie Road.)

A special exhibition of these sometimes strange but wonderful foods will be held at Harbour Castle Hilton on Sunday, June 11 and Monday, June 12 and Bernd Gabel, executive chef at Harbour Castle, has prepared a special menu of Jamaican exotic dishes for the Poseidon dining room.

The best Caribbean dishes are spicy mixtures of island flavors with hot peppers as an essential ingredient. (These fiery little berries were in use on the island when Columbus landed and they've been used ever since to flavor almost everything.)

Breadfruit, oranges, limes, mangoes, rice, coffee and even sugar cane, which we think of as being indigenous to Jamaica, were actually imported by European colonists. (Breadfruit was brought from the South Seas by Capt. William Bligh, late of HMS Bounty.)

The Times visited with the members of the Jamaica Trade Commission last week, tried some of the foods and now intend to broaden the palates of our families.

SHRIMPS JAMAICA

32 pieces (16-20 shrimps peeled and deveined)
1/2 cup ackees, cooked and diced
1 cup tomato sauce
1 tsp. marjoram
3 tsp. French mustard
2 tsp. rum
1 small onion, finely chopped
dash tabasco, salt to taste
2 tsp. butter

Saute the shrimps in butter, add onions and cook until done. Flame with the rum. Pour in the tomato sauce, marjoram, mustard, tabasco and ackees. Simmer for a few minutes and serve with rice, decorating with whole ackees.

Yield: Four portions.

CHO-CHO & CINNAMON PIE

5 lbs. cho-cho
2 lbs. sugar
1 lb. butter
1 1/2 9" sponge cake
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 dash vanilla extract
1 dash almond extract
1 dash lemon extract

Peel and dice cho-cho and place in steam cooker for 45 minutes, then remove from steam. Add butter, sugar, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and flavouring. Crush sponge cake and add. Put in unbaked pie shell and bake until crust becomes golden brown.

Yield: eight portions.

FRESH PINEAPPLE PIE

3 cups fresh pineapple chunks
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. salt
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 tsp. flour
2 tsp. butter
9 oz. short crust pastry

Prepare and line pie tin with 2/3 of pastry crust. Prick bottom and chill. Combine pineapple, sugar, flour, spices and cook over low heat until mixture thickens. Add butter and let cool. Pour in prepared pie shell. Use remainder of pastry to make a design for the top of the pie. Seal edges well. Bake in hot oven for 10 minutes at 450 degrees. Reduce to 300 degrees and bake for approximately 30 minutes until brown.

Yield: 6 portions
