

been sworn, declared that he never told such a thing to Jackson, but that on the 10th July about 2 o'clock p. m. being in the old Grand Trunk Depot, Lafort had given him some liquor to drink, he did not know what kind it was but it had considerably excited him. The Constable in rebuttal established by two witnesses that he was not at that place at the hour mentioned. Onarokite being recalled by the Judge, swore that he got the liquor some time later in the afternoon; that the Constable had called him into the Depot and had given him some liquor to drink; that at that time no one
