

Christ's Robe for Me.

Hymn written to the Welsh tune "Ebenezer" to the theme of the song "Dyma Gariad," sung in the Welsh revival; with original words composed for the Crossley-Hunter meetings by William E. Barton, D.D.

1. Je-sus, Mas-ter, for what rea-son, Didst thou die 'up-on the tree?
 2. Still thy love hath great-er meas-ure, Thou dost love me, e-ven yet!
 3. Lord, I ne'er a-gain will nail thee To my blind will's hate-ful tree

Was it for my sin and trea-son? Sav-ior, didst thou die for me?
 Pre-cious love, my life's best treas-ure—O my soul do not for-get!
 Lord of life hence-forth I'll hail thee, Ev-er-more I'll live for thee.

Love of God, that like an o-cean Bounds the nar-row shores of time,
 O 'tis strange, the Gos-pel sto-ry, Earth can not the like sup-ply,—
 I will sing of sins for-giv-en, I will sing it to the grave;

How could'st thou in such de-vo-tion Give thy-self for sin-ner's crime?
 How the Christ, the Prince of Glo-ry Came for sin-ful men to die.
 Here on earth and high in heav-en I will sing thy pow'r to save.
