Hammond's Slug Shot for Potato Bugs, Currant and Cabbage Worms

TO THE EDITOR OF AMERICAN GARDENING:

In your issue of June 19, on page 209, I notice a 30¢ article on the Colorado Beetle or Potato Bug. For the benefit of your numerous readers I would advise them to try Hammond's Slug Shot. I have used it here this summer with excellent results on Potatoes, Egg Plants, Cucumbers and Squash. It is the best remedy I know of, simple and effective. I purchased two 5-cent bottles which I advertised in your paper, and they are very useful articles. The best time to dust the plants is early morning, as the substance adheres much better when it is on the leaves. Once they get a taste of it, GEORGE STANLEY.

Raspberries and How to Grow Them

This berry succeeds best on light warm soil. The red varieties are propagated by suckers that come up from the roots of the old plants, the black caps by tips. The young canes grow up, turn over in the August or September in the soil usually in June or September. In most sections the reds are cultivated in rows six to eight feet apart and the plants 2½ feet apart in the row. Then let the suckers fill up between to form a solid row. The blacks are usually planted in hills four or five feet apart each way.

In order to get a big crop of large berries it is necessary to give liberal application of manure and good clean cultivation. I have found the size of year that I can keep up the size of my berries much better by cultivating right through the picking season. Run through with the cultivator after each picking to stir the soil, break up the crust formed by the tramping of the pickers and to form a mulch. An important point in raspberry growing is the summer pruning. As soon as the young canes reach a height of 3 feet, usually about the middle of July, we go through and cut off the ends of the canes. This checks the upward growth, makes them grow stocky and causes them to ripen up and form a better quality of wood, which is not so apt to freeze back in winter. We usually remove all dead wood and surplus canes in the spring. Three good varieties are: Marlborough for early, Cuthbert for main crop, and Golden Queen the best white variety.—Fred A. Sheppard, Lincoln Co.

If every young farmer who starts in business on the farm fully appreciated the value of good stock, scrubs would not last very long. Better begin with one good mare or one good cow than with two or more of inferior quality.
