The speaker started out with the assertion that there was no more important problem before the world today than the missionary problem. He depicted the need of missionary effort in our home missionary fields among the Indians, among the scattered settlers in Northern Ontario and Quebec, among the foreign population of the great West, and also in our foreign fields—China, with its restless millions, and Japan with its militarist principles and the hope of future world domination. Would it matter to us should these countries, unenlightened as they are, should plunge the world into another great war? Did it matter to Canada that Germany repudiated this principles of Christ's teachings and set in action a period of bloodshed and misery? Many a broken home circle throughout Canada gives the answer. He closed with a plea to the young to live for things worth while, and to the older ones to help with time, talent and money in this great cause. A subscription list for general missions was taken at the close by Mr. J. R. French, the people responding liberally. The choir furnished appropriate music.
