At the present moment the British Empire is fifty-three times the size of France, fifty-two times that of Germany, three and a half times that of the United States of America, three times that of Europe, with twice the population of all the Russias. It extends over 11,000,000 square miles, occupies one-fifth of the globe containing one-fifth of the human race, or 350,000,000 people, embraces four continents, 10,000 islands, 5,000 promontories and 2,000 rivers.

The Kingston News says that the bicyclists of the city are in a very high degree over the new law, compelling them to carry a lamp and bells. They say that during the past couple of years no accidents of any account have taken place from not carrying lamps or bells, as long as the cyclist kept to their right they are in little danger of their coming together, and as most of the crossings have electric lights on them there is no difficulty in keeping clear of pedestrians. Most of the wheelmen have had experience with lights on their wheels, and say that they are very confusing and even increase the danger of collision. The cyclist threat (if the law is enforced) to put dinner bells, cow bells, and other such "musical" instruments on their wheels and give the Council such a sickener of the bell question that they will be glad to repeal the law.

MAGISTRATES COURT. A full bench of magistrates, consisting of John Cawley, Edward Johnson, L. N. Phelps, and B. Lovett, were engaged all the afternoon of Saturday last in taking the evidence in an assault case which occurred at Sorpton, a classic hamlet some eight miles from Athens, on the Delta road. Robt. Chant complained that Wm. Neff, a neighbor, did on the 25th of May, in the township of Lansdowne, unlawfully assault, beat and bruise him by striking him several severe blows on the face, constituting actual bodily harm. The substance of complainant's evidence was to the effect that on the day in question, while out in his own field, he saw the deft coming up the lane, walking fast and looking mad. Some words passed between them. Some words came that deft claimed had been trespassing on his place. The fit was exchanged freely between them and deft dared him to come over into the lane and he would trim him. Replied that it was his own land and he would go over, which he did and stood near his own fence. Some very strong language was used on both sides, when the deft made for him and he grabbed a stone and threatened to knock his brains out if he touched him. Deft then halted and he threw down the stone, thinking the trouble was over. Deft then grabbed him by the throat and struck him four times in the same place on the forehead, still keeping hold of his throat. He spoke and on the hand which he put up to save his eyes. Never struck or tried to strike the deft during the scuffle, but told him he would have him hauled up for what he had done. Deft then came over to his own place, which was on the other side of the lane and he would go over, which he did and stood near his own fence.
