SHORT NOTES OF LAST NIGHT'S

Service at the Park Street Methodist Church-A Change in the Program.

Rev. Rural Dean McCoch, Revs. Maot, of ---: Reed, of Merlin; Walker, of Louisville; H. W. Crews, of St. Thomas, besides the Methodist pastor occupied seats on the platform.

Mr. Hunter announced a change in the program of subjects for this the closing week. The sermon on dancing will be given on Wednesday evening, Last song sermon to-night, and Rev H. W. Crews, the evangelist's pastor, will take part.

Mr. Hunter's theme was the second coming of Christ, and he strongly urged all, to make ready for the principal preparation of life.

Mr. Crossley spoke of five things that were rightly regarded by Peter, as precious. Precious blood, precious promise, precious faith, precious trial of faith and precious belief. If these things are precious to us in life we shall have the precious joy of eternal

More Grand and More Central.

The New York Times, in a leading editor-The New York Times, in a leading editorial last month, discussing the hotels, the clubs and some public buildings, in relation to their propinquity to the city's centre, said: "The Grand Central Station has come, in the process of the years, to be both more 'Grand' and more 'Central' than when it was originally built." Yes, Commodore Vanderbitt, the founder of the famous house, had a long head. When he projected the "Grand Central Station." he did not plan for a day, but for a long time ahead, for a century more or less, and his worthy successors, by enlarging and remodeling the building, have kept the station "grand" and up-to-date. The Times knows a good thing when it see it.—From the Home Journal, New York.

HOLLOW IN SPOTS?

Ex-Ald. John Liddy says so and Declares he Can Point Out the Defects.

"I told them last fall that if they did not leave that King St. pavement over until spring it would be hollow." said ex-Ald. John Liddy. "All the satisfaction I got was to be asked, what does Liddy know about pavements? Now, you see I was right. All along now, you see I was right. All along in spots the pavement is hollow. It went through in one place this morning and I brought away some samples just to show. You know they don't think I know much about engineering work, but I know something, and if they had taken my advice they would have had a better street than they have how."

MR. PARK THE LIKELY MAN.

It is not probable there will be much discussion over the appointment of an inspector at the school board meeting this evening. Mr. Park appears cure a most capable and painstaking official, qualified in every way to look after the interests of Chatham's schools. Further than that, Mr. Park has shown that he is fearless doing his duty and that on every occasion the welfare of the schools under his jurisdiction is his first consideration. We think the trustees are making no mistake in the selection if they adhere to the determination which current

A HARWICH PRESENTATION.

On Monday, March 25, a surprise party was given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs Lot Fields, River Road, Harwich, at which over eighty friends took part in showing their warm appreciation in a substantial manner by making the presentation of a magnificent parlor lamp to Mr. Field and a handsome rocking chair to Mrs. Field, accompanied by a kindly worded address. The address was read by Elsie Arnold to the esteemed couple that was signed by P. D. Campbell, Chas. Cambers and Bruce Read. Mr. Fields feelingly replied, expressing his regret that he was about to leave a wide circle of friends who had shown his family and himself so much kindness and he hoped at his future home preciation in a substantial manner by ness and he hoped at his future home in Chatham he would have the pleasure of again meeting his friends who would always have a warm welcome. The ladies served refreshments and the remainder of the evening was spent listening to an excellent program consisting of music, singing and recitations.
