PASSED MANY A SLEEPLESS NIGHT

Will He Used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They set H. S. Barnes Right on His Feet.

Changeable weather and indigestion travel hand-in-hand, each helping to make the other more disagreeable. For when the stomach lags in its work the body grows weak, and weakened bodies cannot stand inconveniences of any kind. The remedy is to help the stomach, and the help the stomach needs is contained in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Those who have used them will tell you that. H. S. Barnes, of Rat Portage, has used them and he says:

"I was a victim of Dyspepsia and reading of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets led me to try them. The effect was marvellous. They set me right on my feet after having spent many a sleepless night suffering from a disordered condition of the stomach." Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure all stomach ailments. One or two Tablets taken after a hearty meal is an insurance policy against discomfort of any kind.

Table Decorations.

Flowers are no longer massed in the center of the table. A few choice blossoms are used, distributed in a dainty way about the table surrounding the central cluster, which, compared to what we have been accustomed to, is meager. This sparse use of floral decorations requires a new set of vases or flower holders, and specially made for the purpose are crystal stands banded with silver. For the table center is a circle in two halves, to be used separately if one wishes. To go with it are small single vases for the corners.

THE THIN MAN'S DANGER.

He can't resist disease germs, — that's why he's such a mark for consumption. In this land of plenty, thinness is wickedness, especially when it's so easily overcome with Ferrozone. This remarkable tissue-builder makes you fat quickly; it does so by forming blood that's rich, nourishing and health-giving. Ferrozone supplies the nutrient needed by worn-out nerves, rapidly constructs muscle and fatty tissue. The form fills out, the cheeks redden, proving that weight is being added. To be well and stay well, use Ferrozone. Fifty chocolate-coated tablets in a box for fifty cents, or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

Don't Expect Too Much.

If you wish to be young looking and happy adopt as your principle in life never to expect too much of people. A large amount of worry and trouble arises from our too great expectation of others. We expect too much of our children. There must be gifted, beautiful, obedient, little compounds of all the virtues, and if they are not this we think bitter things and sow wrinkles and gray hairs for ourselves. We expect too much of our friends, and ill nature is the result of the disappointments encountered. The housekeeper develops into a domestic pessimist who does not find the orderliness and cleanliness which she expects.

HALF-SICK PEOPLE.

The world is full of them. Just sick enough to be lazy and listless; to have no appetite; to sleep poorly. Quite often you're half-sick yourself. Chances are the trouble is in the stomach and bowels. Best prescription is Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they tone up the entire system, strengthen the stomach, elevate your spirits, and make you well in one night. Dr. Hamilton's Pills work wonders with people in your condition. Mild in action, effective and easy to take. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day; 25c.

Fried Apple Toast.

Cut six apples into quarters, take the core out, peel and cut them in slices. Put in the saucepan an ounce of butter, then throw over the apples about two ounces of white powdered sugar and two table-spoonfuls of water. Put the saucepan on the fire, let it stew quickly, toss them up or stir with a spoon. A few minutes will do them. When tender cut two or three slices of bread half an inch thick. Put in a frying pan two ounces of butter, put on a fire. When the butter is melted put in your bread, which fry to a nice yellowish color. When nice and crisp take them out, place them on a dish, a little white sugar over the apples about an inch thick. Serve hot.

A FAMILY NECESSITY.

It's remedy capable of affording immediate relief to the hundred and one ailments that constantly arise. It may be a cold, perhaps toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back—use Polson's Nerviline, it is penetrating, pain subduing and powerful. Nerviline is at least five times stronger than ordinary remedies and its worth in any household can't be over-estimated. For man or beast Nerviline is a panacea for all pain and costs only 25c. per bottle. Buy Nerviline to-day from your druggist.

NEW GENIUS IN LONDON

BARONESS ORCZY GETS QUICK LITERARY RECOGNITION.

Author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel" and "By the Gods Beloved" Cannot Write Too Much, is Verdigr of Publishers—Born in Hungary, Wins Success At Art, and Then Writes Stories.

Baroness Emmuska Orczy, whose books are the talk of London nowadays, feels that her record should be an encouragement to young authors and playwrights.

"I had had no literary experience before writing my first story," she told me the other day, "and knew nothing of the stage when I wrote my first play, 'The Scarlet Pimpernel.' I had not the slightest influence to bring to bear, and yet both story and play were accepted. I do not think that the young author ought ever to get discouraged at the feeling that influence is necessary to success."

"But you probably had more trouble in having your play accepted than your first story?" I suggested. "Not a bit," she replied. "In fact, I understand that the record of 'The Scarlet Pimpernel' was unique. I not only had no difficulty in getting the play read, but it was accepted by the first management to whom we submitted it. I was then only a writer of short magazine stories, and with the exception of one critic did not know a soul connected with the stage."

And despite this "The Scarlet Pimpernel" was written, accepted, produced, and had made a tremendous hit, all within nine months. But perhaps the genius of this charming English bred Hungarian woman less brilliant or less versatile than the leading English writers of the time would be less keen. As an artist she has been a successful exhibitor at the Royal Academy, and many of the leading magazines of a few years ago give testimony of her skill in black and white work. And now, to cap the climax, she is writing novels so popular that London publishers, even without her consent, are buying up all her stray magazine stories in order to bring them out in book form.

An odd result of this scrambling for Orczy literature has been an impression that the Baroness has been writing "The Scarlet Pimpernel" this year. The Scarlet Pimpernel was written, wrote from her play last year. "The Emperor's Candlesticks" is a reprint of an old book that first appeared during the Boer war. And the latest book advertised was routed out from an odd corner in her desk, where it had lain for four years.

She writes while you wait idea seems to have reached America, although the first of Baroness Orczy's books to be published there only appeared in August. One large New York publisher recently wrote to London asking how many more books might be expected from her before the New Year.

The truth is, however, that the Baroness Orczy, while remarkably versatile, is also a careful writer. "I live with my characters," she said to me, "and love my heroes and heroines as devotedly as ever they love me. I am speaking, as in writing, Baroness Orczy uses excellent English, with an accent better than many educated native Londoners. This seems remarkable, when it is remembered that she was 15 years old when she came to this country."

"I was born at Tarna-Eor in Hungary," she said, "and am the last of an old Hungarian family, many members of which have served their country from time immemorial in diplomatic and foreign affairs. My father, Baron Orczy, was a musician as well as a diplomatist, and was for a time director of the National opera house in Budapest."

"It was intended at first that I should become an artist, and in my childhood days I studied painting seriously. Encouraged by my old friend, Edward Long, R.A., I exhibited several times at the Royal Academy. I spent many happy hours in Mr. Long's studio watching him paint, and sat to him for some of his most popular pictures. He didn't like professional models. One result is that my portrait might be found in many of his paintings, including 'Christ Preaching from the Waters' and 'Zeuxis at Crotona.' I ascribed to the seeds sown in my mind by his brilliant pictures of ancient Egypt the thoughts that resulted in 'By the Gods Beloved.'"

One of the oddest incidents in the Baroness' career was the almost accident that led her to take up literary work. It happened less than six years ago. She and her husband were house hunting at the time and were staying meanwhile with a family whose chief recreation consisted in writing short stories and reading them aloud to one another who would listen to them. One evening after having heard one of these not over brilliant stories she exclaimed to her husband:

"If these people, who have never been out of their own circle, can write stories, some of which are published, why shouldn't I, who have been all over Europe and have known many people, be able to write, too?" "Why shouldn't you?" he replied. That was the beginning of the Baroness Orczy's literary career. The Baroness is at the present moment writing a new novel, which, it is expected, will be finished early next year. Its name is to be "Beau Brocade."

THE WORST OF A COLD.

Is how suddenly it comes. No time to hurry to the drug store, croup develops, the lungs are effected with pneumonia or tuberculosis, and it's too late. Keep Catarrhazone on hand—it kills colds instantly. Something magical about the way it cures Catarrh and Bronchitis. Catarrhazone is the best remedy because it cures in nature's way; it heals, soothes and restores permanent. Carry a Catarrhazone Inhaler in your pocket, use it occasionally and you'll never catch cold—that's worth remembering.

Some Hair "Don't's."

The woman who asks about caring for her hair will have gained some knowledge if she remembers a few don'ts. Don't break your hair or irritate the scalp by using too many or too heavy hairpins. Don't use an iron on your hair any oftener than is necessary. Don't use too fine a comb upon your hair. It breaks it, marls it and is absolutely fatal to it. Don't use soda upon your hair. It dries it, coarsens it and makes it split.

A grain of sand in the eye can cause excruciating agony. A grain of pebble in a piece of the grain of sand intensifies the torment. The pain is not confined to the organs affected. The whole body feels the shock of that little irritating particle. It is so when there is any derangement or disorder of the delicate womanly organs. The disorder may seem trivial but the whole body feels it. The nervous system is disordered. There is fretfulness, irritability, silliness and depression of spirits. The general health of a woman depends on the local health of the organs peculiarly feminine. Remove the drains, ulcerations, bearing down pains, and other afflictions of woman, and the whole body feels the benefit. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a specific for the diseases that undermine the strength of women. It is free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics, poisons which enter into many other preparations for women's use. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

A STORM IN THE JUNGLE.

It Comes With a Bear Like That of a Giant Waterfall.

People who have never been in a jungle talk of the sky as a painter talks of the horizon or a seafaring man of the offing—as if when you wanted to see it you only need use your eyes. But in the jungle you don't see the sky—at least you only see a few scraggy patches of it overhead through the openings in the twigs and leaves. Neither do you feel the wind blowing, nor get burned or dazzled by the sun, nor even see that luminary except by momentary glimpses about midday, from which it follows that a jungle man does not usually pretend to be weatherwise. If he does he is even a greater humbug than the rest of the weather prophets. On the afternoon about which we are speaking I remember setting forth on my walk in the still glow of the tropical calm and wondering rather at the intense stillness of the surrounding forest. Then the air grew cooler and the green of the foliage in front seemed to deepen, and presently there was a sound as of a giant waterfall in the distance. Waterfalls do not, however, grow louder every second, whereas the noise in front did so. Then there was a loud, angry growl, as of a dozen lions. A minute more and the whole jungle began to roar as if fifty squadrons of heavy cavalry were coming up at a gallop. Then came a drop of rain and a peal of thunder which seemed to make the world stop.

Then the storm began. The sky above darkened; the trees clattered; the brushwood beneath hissed and howled itself. A deluge of raindrops blotted out the narrow view. Down it came, soaking through the densest leaves under which one fled for refuge, striking the grass and sand with millions of dull thuds, dashing furiously against the leaves as if they were so many hostile shields, streaking the air with innumerable perpendicular lines and hurling itself down with the force of bullets.

In such a downpour one may as well walk and get wet as stand still and get wet. Unfortunately one did not know where to walk to. The "circumbendibus system" presupposes the fact that the wagon wheels and bullock tracks can be seen and noted, but when the cart track is no longer a cart track, but "all turned to rushing waters," such tracks cannot be seen, and unless you have a pocket compass you may as well try to fly as to get back to where you came from. When one reads of travelers lost in the backwoods, they always steer by the sun—and probably very badly—but when there is no sun what are you to do?

The Ice of Greenland.

The largest mass of ice in the world is probably the one which fills up nearly the whole of the interior of Greenland, where it has accumulated since before the dawn of history. It is believed to now form a block about 600,000 square miles in area and averaging a mile and a half in thickness. According to these statistics, the lump of ice is larger in volume than the whole body of water in the Mediterranean, and there is enough of it to cover the whole of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland with a layer about seven miles thick. If it were cut into two convenient slabs and built up equally upon the entire surface of "gigantic little Wales" it would form a pile more than 120 miles high. There is ice enough in Greenland to bury the entire area of the United States a quarter of a mile deep.—London Globe.

A Dowry on Approval.

A curious custom prevails among Roumanian peasants. When a Roumanian girl is of a marriageable age, all her trousseau, which has been carefully woven, spun and embroidered by her mother and herself, is placed in a painted wooden box. When a young man thinks of asking to be allowed to pay his attentions to the girl he is at liberty at first to open the box, which is always placed conveniently at hand, and examine the trousseau. If the suit-or is satisfied with the quantity and quality of the dowry he makes a formal application for the girl's hand, but if, on the contrary, the trousseau does not please him, he is quite at liberty to retire.

Man and His Valet.

"I never saw a man so entirely dependent on his valet?" "Quite helpless without him, eh?" "Quite helpless. Mabel told me that when he came to propose he brought his valet with him." "What was that for?" "Why, when he reached the proper place his valet spread a hemstitched handkerchief on the floor for him to kneel upon."

Diplomatically Put.

"I am afraid you are absolutely governed by your wife." "No," answered Mr. Meekton, who had been reading the foreign news. "I'm not absolutely governed by her, but I must admit that I am very much within her sphere of influence."

A Choice of Evils.

Landlady—Would you advise me to send my daughter to a cooking school or to a music school? Boarder (reflectively)—Well, I think I'd send her to a cooking school. It may be more fatal in its results, but it isn't anything like so noisy.

Stingy.

"It seems strange," said Deacon Mayberry as he counted the money after church, "that a large congregation can be so small."

All human power is a compound of time and patience.—Balzac.
