Gratifying to All.
The high position attained and the universal acceptance and approval of the pleasant liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs, as the most excellent laxative known, illustrate the value of the qualities on which its success is based and are abundantly gratifying to the California Fig Syrup Company.

If the orator is referred to as a word painter, why not refer to the lecturer in a dead-and-dumb institute as a sign painter. Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular audience. No pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

The Wonderful Success.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—There was a young girl of Bordeaux, Who was always, almost, on the go. When any man tried To make her his bride, She would turn up her nose and say "Neux." Many years passed away in London: She grew old and had a few wrinkles. She grew something sad And felt pretty bad. But she went on the stage in Bordeaux. And all the dear chaps, down you know, At once thought her out. And fell at her feet. She was loved by them all, high and leoux.

On their return they will reside on Hill street. A large number of their friends bade them adieu with copious showers of rice and best wishes.

Thanksgiving Festival.
The annual thanksgiving festival of St. Matthew's Church, Dundas street east, held last evening in the East End Hall, was like its predecessors very successful, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather. The proceeds amounting to nearly $100 are in aid of the church. Tables were set in the hall and after they had been cleared off several times a short programme was successfully carried out. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. M. Seaborn, Dr. Gardiner took the chair. Thomas Clarke delivered the opening address. The other features of the programme were a quartet by Misses Haynes and Bella Curry, and Messrs. Harry Currie and Chas. Berry, of London West; a duet by Misses Haynes and Currie and a solo by Ed. Gardiner. The committee who are to be congratulated on the successful management of the affair included Messrs. Lashburn, Chas. Chadwick, Bendall, Kingsworth, Laphorn, McKenna, Showler, Henshaw, Geo. Childs, Gardiner, Quick, Cripps, Little, Stallard and Phillips. Josie Mills at the Grand.

Josie Mills had another good house last night although the weather was miserable. The production was "A Wife's Honor," a melodramatic drama of four acts. The emotional role of Ruth Bullion was taken by Miss Mills, whose portrayal of the outcast daughter and wronged wife did credit to her artistic ability. Frank Ambrose, her leading man, is a clever actor. Miss Negrell's sobriety work was good, and J. W. Turnbull, as the comedian, entertained the audience well. Not the least enjoyable part of the programme was the descriptive fantasia, "A Trip to Candy Island," rendered by the orchestra. It was replete with novel and humorous specialties. Manager Haystead's orchestra is superb and costs him a pretty penny. The leader, Prof. E. C. Cary, is a cornetist who has few superiors; his playing was highly appreciated. To-night the stirring drama, "Condemned to Death," will be on the boards, and the orchestra will also give some fine selections. The prices are remarkably low—50, 25 and 15 cents.

A TRAVELER'S IMPRESSIONS.

Mr. J. B. Sutherland Gives an Interesting Lecture on His European Trip.

J. B. Sutherland, of Montreal, formerly of the firm of Laing & Sutherland, this city, entertained a large audience in St. James' Presbyterian Church last evening with an interesting account of his travels in Europe. Mr. Sutherland is an excellent lecturer. The impressions made upon his mind during his trip were reproduced in graphic language, while his keen observation enabled him to impart a minuteness and detail to his descriptions that lent them added realism. After a brief glance at England's metropolis, he took his hearers to France's gay capital, the circus of which he pictured in glowing terms. He told of the majestic buildings and beautiful boulevards of Paris—avenues four times the width of Wellington street, lined on either side with rows of stately trees. When illustrated by four or five hours' journey by rail, including a ride through the wonderful tunnel that bores the Alps, sufficed to bring him into sunny Italy. Naples, Milan, Rome and Venice were brought before the audience's eye by the lecturer, who dwelt upon the historic associations clustered about the many famous cathedrals, palaces and places in this interesting land, whose praises had been sung by the poets of all times and climes. Old St. Peter's, the Colosseum and the Catacombs, so replete with the martyrdom of the early Christians, the prison in which the apostle Paul was confined and other "sights" of ancient Rome, fraught with the reminiscences of centuries, were eloquently dilated upon. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Sutherland, both for his delightful address and his kindness in offering his services gratuitously. A silver collection was taken up. The lecture was under the auspices of the church of J. P. S. C. E.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

A Cholera Reminiscence.

As the cholera is now for the third time threatening to visit our country, many are speaking of it when in London in 1854. I suppose there are few now remaining who were here when it made its first appearance in the summer of 1852. I was then a boy in the store of Denis O'Brien, one of London's first merchants. London at that time was only a small town, the business part extending from Talbot on Dundas to the Court House, and south to York street. A family of emigrants had just arrived and were living in a small house a few doors west of Mr. Farlane's Hotel. How well I remember the afternoon when one, a woman of the family, was attacked with cholera. You may readily imagine the excitement that prevailed, for although we had no telegraph or telephones the news spread with wonderful rapidity. She died before night and some came to the store to borrow spades to dig her grave, and she was buried immediately. I was called twice during that night by parties to get brandy and opium, the favorite remedies for cholera at that time. The disease increased daily. We had but few doctors, and one of the first to leave the town was our oldest resident doctor and family. I do not know that it was a great loss, for they knew so little how to treat cholera that they were not likely to succeed. Dr. Donnelly, from Montreal, arrived, who understood the treatment and had great success, losing scarcely any patients to whom he was called in time, but he was so overworked both day and night that he said if he were attacked he could not survive, and he did not, though everything was done under his own instruction by the faithful friends who attended him to the last. His death spread a gloom over the whole community; confidence and hope were almost lost.

The Governor, Sir John Colborne, was applied to, and he sent Dr. George Moore, who remained in London many years and was much esteemed. There were about fifteen deaths, a large number in proportion to the inhabitants.

Communication with the country was nearly suspended. Persons from the town were halted and kept at a respectful distance. But as cold weather and long nights approached health and tranquillity were restored.
